Executive Order on Terrorist Financing
September 24, 2001

&We will starve terrorists of funding, turn them against each other, rout them out of their safe hiding places, and bring them to justice.8

President George W. Bush
September 24, 2001

The President has directed the first strike on the global terror network today by issuing an Executive Order to starve terrorists of their support funds. The Order expands the Treasury Department,s power to target the support structure of terrorist organizations, seize the assets of terrorists and those that support them, and increases our ability to block U.S. assets of foreign banks who refuse to freeze terrorist assets abroad.

Disrupting the Financial Infrastructure of Terrorism
ú Targets all individuals and institutions linked to global terrorism.

ú Allows the Treasury Department to freeze U.S. assets and block U.S. transactions of any person or institution associated with terrorists or terrorist organizations.
ú Names specific individuals and organizations whose assets and transactions are to be blocked.
ú Identifies charitable organizations that secretly funnel money to al-Qaeda.
ú Provides donors information about charitable groups who fund terrorist organizations.
ú States the President,s intent to punish those financial institutions at home and abroad that continue to provide resources and/or services to terrorist organizations.

Authorities Broadened
The new Executive order broadens existing authority in three principal ways:
ú It expands the coverage of existing Executive orders from terrorism in the Middle East to global terrorism;
ú The Order expands the class of targeted groups to include all those who are &associated with8 designated terrorist groups; and ú Establishes our ability to block the U.S. assets of, and deny access to U.S. markets to, those foreign banks that refuse to freeze terrorist assets.

Blocking Terrorist Assets
ú The Order prohibits U.S. transactions with those terrorist organizations, leaders, and corporate fronts listed in the Annex.
ú Eleven terrorist organizations are listed in the Order, including organizations that make up the al-Qaeda network.
ú A dozen terrorist leaders are listed, including Osama bin Ladin and his chief lieutenants, three charitable organizations, and one corporate front organization are identified as well.
ú The Order authorizes the Secretary of State and the Secretary of the Treasury to make additional terrorist designations in the coming weeks and months.

Other Actions in War on Terrorist Financing
This Executive Order is part of a broader strategy that we have developed for suppressing terrorist financing:
ú A Foreign Terrorist Asset Tracking Center (FTAT) is up and running. The FTAT is a multi-agency task force that will identify the network of terrorist funding and freeze assets before new acts of terrorism take place.
ú The President, the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of State and others are working with our allies around the world to tackle the financial underpinnings of terrorism. We are working through the G-8 and the United Nations. Already, several of our allies, including Switzerland and Britain, have frozen accounts of suspected terrorists.

I can't speak to Tim's assignment decisions, I just follow them.

I do it find it quite strange, as I am sure you can gather, that this assignment was made and was accepted and I was never even consulted about what it might entail. But that said, I have no desire to be a bag carrier on something that should need only one person.

Tim brought it up with me this morning, on his own motion, because it presumably raises regulatory issues in the implemenation process, and I am regulatory gal. But I think you all should work on it too, because you have the substantive expertise, and I have no desire to tread on that ground of yours. That makes the most sense, don't you think?

I'll be there. Tim has tasked me with handling the regulatory side of this, and that's what I will do. Would it also be a good idea to have the lawyers who worked on the substance of the bill and who understand the drafters' intent (Kavanaugh/Elwood) there?

Thanks, Tim:

Helgi, as you probably know, OMB has 14 days from the signing of the airline bill to issue regulations for the airline stabilization board, which is comprised of the Fed, DOT and Treasury (and GAO as a non-voting member).

We're having a meeting at 3:00 PM today with all relevant parties in room 9104 of the NEOB and you are invited to attend and participate. If you are unavailable, I'll keep you informed and let you know of future meetings and share drafts of the regs with you as they are developed. Because we're on such a tight schedule, we will probably be working on this and having meetings almost every day this week.

As you may know, Stuart Holliday is now handling the Office of Homeland Security. We will be happy to take any calls, questions and or faxes that you may receive on this. If possible, please do not forward calls directly to Stuart - rather forward the candidates calls to 456-5276 and have them speak to either Jeff or myself.

We will keep you updated on the staff structure of Homeland Security, until then, thanks for your patience on this matter.

Jennifer

FYI - our temporary fax number is 456-1121. I'll let you know when we have our normal fax back.

Joseph R. Biden, Jr.

UNITED STATES SENATOR - DELAWARE

http://www.senate.gov/~biden

FOR RELEASE: September 25, 2001 CONTACT: Norm Kurz, 202-224-8895

Biden Urges New Tools For Law Enforcement, Stresses Practical Measure to Combat Bioterrorism Threat

Emphasizing the importance of the threat of bioterrorism and our need to take practical measures to combat such concerns, U.S. Senator Joseph R. Biden, Jr. today indicated his support for strengthening counter-terrorism measures to enhance the safety and national security interests of the nation.

"The September 11 attacks have focused our collective minds and energies on the need to take steps to prevent such atrocities from ever occurring again," Biden said. "I'm pleased the President has submitted proposed legislation to enact many of the needed measures I first offered in the 1995 terrorism bill, though I think we ought to consider some further steps as well. We've also got to get ahead of the curve on taking practical steps to reduce the risk of biological weapons."

Quoting from a letter he received in his capacity as Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Biden shared the views of Nobel Laureate and noted expert on infectious diseases Dr. Joshua Lederberg, who wrote that biological warfare constitutes a serious and complex threat to national security because it is available even to "rank amateurs."

Dr. Lederberg said at least a dozen countries are thought to be developing biological weapons. "In the current world where major states sustain some equilibrium through mutual deterrence," he wrote, biological warfare "offers opportunity for grave harm on the part of lesser actors," making it "probably the most perplexing and gravest security challenge we face." Lederberg's letter was entered into the record during a Foreign Relations Committee hearing Biden chaired September 5 on the Homeland Threat and Biological Weapons.

Following today's Judiciary Committee hearing with Attorney General John Aschroft, Biden spoke of his backing for the Administration's efforts to enact a terrorism bill while pointing out measures he has long supported and that ought to be included to strengthen the legislation.

In 1995, Biden authored the Omnibus Counter-Terrorism Bill that would have enabled law enforcement to pursue leads pursuant to credible terrorist threats.

"My standard has long been 'what's good for the mafia is good for the terrorists'," Biden said. "There is no sensible reason why we should treat terrorists more leniently. It's been obvious to me for many years that we need to give law enforcement authorities investigating and prosecuting international terrorists the same tools they have to fight drug kingpins and organized crime."

The President's bill, like the Biden proposal several years ago, would extend current wiretap authority to include terrorist crimes, thereby giving law enforcement the same tools to pursue terrorists they have long had in narcotics and racketeering cases. However, two other Biden proposals have not been included in the Administration's bill.

"I think most Americans would agree an identical standard should apply to terrorists and the mob. We should provide emergency 48 hour wiretap authority without prior judicial authorization," Biden said. "This is exactly what law enforcement can do today in cases involving organized crime, so long as the court makes an after-the-fact determination that there was probable cause to get the emergency wiretap in the first place.

"I also think the 'good faith' standard the Supreme Court has long recognized in the criminal law field should be applied to wiretaps," Biden added. Terrorists and other criminals should not go free when the police make an honest mistake, if they were otherwise acting reasonably and in 'good faith.' The Court already has held that this sensible policy is constitutional.

"Finally, we need to use roving wiretaps to follow a suspect anywhere and everywhere rather than just on a telephone," Biden argued. I strongly supported this tool in 1995 and am pleased Congress has since enacted into law a roving wiretap provision. However, while law enforcement gained the right to use this technique in 1998, cops continue to be hobbled by a higher burden than that required to obtain a 'bug.' This disparity should be corrected. "

Biden also indicated his concern regarding two potential provisions - concerning the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act (FISA) and measures relating to immigration - included in the Administration's terrorism bill.

"I agree the fight against international terrorism requires us to rethink whether the high wall we've erected separating the intelligence and law enforcement communities should be lowered," Biden said. "But historically we've been well-served by the bright line that divides our cops and spies. I have real concerns about ensuring that whatever we do in his area strikes the right balance between fighting terrorism and maintaining our civil liberties. There are genuine constitutional questions we must review.

"Similarly, tightening restrictions on non-citizens is one thing, but efforts to expand detentions should not cross the line and violate the rights of due process," Biden argued. "Legitimate and justified detentions, on a limited basis, will gain the approval of Americans. But law enforcement officials have the responsibility to act quickly to charge suspects with a crime, deport them, or release them.

"And all us must be vigilant in guarding the rights of fellow Americans who are in danger of discrimination on the basis of their name or skin color. Especially in a time of crisis, we cannot jettison our fundamental values and beliefs," Biden concluded.

Presidential Action – Thursday, September 27

White House Office of Communications

President Visits Chicago's O'Hare Airport

Announces Aggressive New Airline Safety Package

Message

The President has crafted strong new measures to help ensure airline and aircraft safety. On behalf of every passenger, crew member and pilot, the President wants to make America's system of airline security stronger, more aggressive and more reliable.

When terrorists struck America they wanted to create an atmosphere of fear – and they have failed. Airline workers are standing against terror by flying planes, loading bags and serving passengers. America will not surrender our freedom to travel -- or our way of life.

What the President Will Announce

- ☑ $3 billion in funding to improve the security of our airplanes and airports.
- ☑ $500 million in grant funding to make cockpits and pilots more secure.
- ☑ A dramatic increase in the number of federal air marshals on airplanes.
- ☑ The federal government will now manage all airport security and screening services, including maintaining a visible presence at airports, supervising baggage and passenger security, conducting safety inspections, setting rigorous new security standards, and conducting more intensive background checks when hiring.
- ☑ That he is asking governors to call up the National Guard immediately and place them at inspection stations in airports that do not yet have a sufficient security presence until the new security plan is in place.
- ☑ On Friday nine Members of the President's Cabinet will board commercial flights to show their confidence in the airline industry.

Good morning everybody.

Attached is (1) a fact sheet on today's announcement by the President, and (2) a detailed Q&A on today's announcement. Let me know if you have any questions.

Enhancing Aviation Safety & Security

Fact Sheet

Expanded Federal Air Marshal Program:

Since September 11, the U.S. government has been steadily increasing the number of Federal Air Marshals using law enforcement officers loaned from various federal agencies. The President will continue to expand the Air Marshal program and seek congressional approval to make this expansion permanent. The requirements and qualifications of Federal Air Marshals are among the most stringent of any U.S. federal law enforcement agency.

Federal Grant Program to Strengthen Aircraft Security:

Effective October 1, 2001, a fund of $500 million will be established to finance aircraft modifications to delay or deny access to the cockpit. Funding may be provided through grants or cost sharing arrangements and will be used for a number of projects, including to develop and implement means to:

- Restrict opening of the cockpit door during flight;
- Fortify cockpit doors to deny access from the cabin to the pilots in the cockpit;
- Alert the cockpit crew to activity in the cabin; and
- Ensure continuous operation of the aircraft transponder in the event the crew faces an emergency.

Federal Management of Airport Security Services:

The President will work with Congress to put the federal government in charge of airport security and screening services.

The new security will be performed by a combination of federal and non-federal workforce, with federal uniformed personnel managing all operations and maintaining a visible presence at all commercial airports.

The federal government will:

- Establish new standards for security operations.
- Supervise the passenger and baggage security at the 420 commercial passenger airports nationwide.
- Perform intensive background checks and train and test screeners and security personnel.
- Purchase and maintain all equipment.
- Oversee patrolling of secure areas and monitoring of the quality of the airport's access controls.
- Work with other law enforcement authorities at the federal, state and local levels as well as serve as a key facilitator of coordination regarding homeland security.

Immediate Airport Security Measures:

Fully implementing the extensive security proposal may take four to six months. During that time, the President will help ensure that every airport has a strong security presence by asking the Governors of the 50 States to call up the National Guard – at the federal government's expense – to augment existing security staff at every commercial airport nationwide.

Prior to deployment the National Guard personnel will receive training in airport security techniques from the FAA.

Questions & Answers on the President's Agenda to Improve Aviation Safety

National Guard Deployment

Q: What is the goal of deploying the National Guard to airports?

To immediately deploy a trained, armed and highly visible federal presence to enhance security at the nation's commercial airports.

Q: How many National Guard personnel will be deployed?

Sufficient National Guard personnel to staff checkpoints (many composed of multiple adjacent screening stations) at about 420 airports nationwide (including territories and commonwealths).

Q: When will the National Guard deployment begin?

The President will ask governors to begin the deployments immediately.

Q: What kind of training will be provided?

FAA will design and deliver comprehensive training in National Guard Armories and on-the-job training at airports addressing:

- Legal and operational considerations of the checkpoint operation
- Courteous and efficient screening
- Safe handling of deadly or dangerous items
- Incident management
- Conflict resolution
- Screening techniques and equipment

Q: Who will pay for the costs associated with the mobilization?

The federal government will pay the entire costs of the mobilization

Q: What will be the duties, responsibilities, and authorities of the National Guard?

Provide a highly visible, armed deterrence at security checkpoints

- Monitor and reinforce the pre-existing checkpoint structure and operations
- Monitor alertness and performance, and in conjunction with the ground security coordinator, ensure corrective actions are taken as necessary
- Actively provide assistance to screeners and supervisors as necessary
- Assist in responding to and resolving routine contentious situations, when requested
- Assist local law enforcement conducting regular duties at the checkpoint, upon request.

- Evaluate checkpoint operations and provide observations and recommendations to the checkpoint supervisors and FAA.

Q: Why didn't the President federalize the National Guard?

Because mobilization through the governors gives the National Guard additional civilian law enforcement powers.

Expansion of the Federal Air Marshal Program

Q: How many Federal Air Marshals were there before Sept. 11 and how many will there be under the new expansion?

The Federal Air Marshal force is now being significantly expanded. For reasons of national security, we are not able to divulge certain information – including their numbers, flights, training, funding levels, and weapons.

Q: Why didn't we have Federal Air Marshals on the hijacked flights?

Federal Air Marshals have always been deployed to the areas of greatest risk. Prior to Sept. 11 the greatest risk to U.S. carriers was believed to be outside of the U.S.

Q: What are the training and qualifications requirements for Air Marshals?

The requirements and qualifications of Federal Air Marshals are among the most stringent of any U.S. federal law enforcement agencies. In fact, they have the highest shooting qualification standards of all such agencies. These high and demanding standards will be maintained as we expand the program.

We are currently using a significant number of law enforcement officers from other agencies to serve as temporary air marshals as we expand the force. These officers have all received intensive training on the unique aspects of preventing hijackings.

Q: When will the new program be fully staffed?

While we are not able to divulge staffing numbers due to national security concerns, the dramatic expansion of the air marshal program will lead to improved aviation security for passengers and flight crews.

Q: What should someone do if he or she wants to become a Federal Air Marshal?

The response from the American public to our call for more Federal Air Marshals has been overwhelming and heart-warming. Volunteers can download an application from the FAA web-site. The address is: jobs.faa.gov. Our latest tally showed 5.2 million hits and more than 150,000 applications downloaded.

Aviation Security & Aircraft Modernization Grants

Q: What specific new activities will the government be undertaking?

The President will work with Congress to put the federal government in charge of airport security and screening services. The new security will be performed by a combination of federal and non-federal workforce, with federal uniformed personnel managing all operations and maintaining a visible presence at all commercial airports.

The federal government will:

- Establish new standards for security operations.
- Supervise the passenger and baggage security at the 420 commercial passenger airports nationwide.
- Perform intensive background checks and train and test screeners and security personnel.
- Purchase and maintain all equipment.
- Oversee patrolling of secure areas and monitoring of the quality of the airport's access controls.
- Work with other law enforcement authorities at the federal, state and local levels as well as serve as a key facilitator of coordination regarding homeland security.

Q: What are the grants to be used for?

Effective October 1, 2001, a fund of $500 million will be established to finance aircraft modifications to delay or deny access to the cockpit. Funding may be provided through grants, cost sharing or other arrangements and will be used for a number of projects, including to develop and implement means to:

- Restrict opening of the cockpit door during flight;
- Fortify cockpit doors to deny access from the cabin to the pilots in the cockpit;
- Alert the cockpit crew to activity in the cabin; and
- Ensure continuous operation of the aircraft transponder in the event the crew faces an emergency.

Q: Who is eligible for the grants?

The objective of this grant program is to quickly make modifications to airplanes that prohibit unwanted entry to the cockpit.

Since the airlines are responsible for making the necessary changes to their airplanes, applications will only be accepted from the airlines. Initially, only U.S. airlines will be eligible for the grants. Individuals and groups outside the airline community with designs that they believe prohibit entry to the cockpit should work directly with the airlines to make their designs known.

Q: Why aren't foreign carriers that fly into and out of the U.S. eligible?

The objective is to identify immediate changes that can be made to prohibit unwanted entry into the cockpit. Under international law, the country that operates the airplane is primarily responsible for its design and operation. So, changes to international airplanes need to be coordinated with those authorities. The US government will work closely and share ideas and information on safety and cockpit protections with all foreign authorities.

Q: How will the grant funds be awarded?

DOT Secretary Mineta will work with the Federal Aviation Administration to establish a Board that will apply a set of discrete criteria that will ensure the fair and equitable distribution of the funds. The award will be based upon the applicant's ability to meet defined requirements that will be specified in the award criteria. Applicants must be able to demonstrate their ability to design, develop, and/or install the safety enhancement within an established timeframe. Applicants must be able to demonstrate that the product can be applied across the aviation industry. Funds will be awarded through established processes to quickly disburse Federal funds.

Q: What kind of projects can be funded in the short term?

There have already been ideas presented by some airlines to provide protection against intrusion: Examples of these ideas include:

- Deadbolts, bars, nets or similar devices across the inside of the flight deck doors
- Video cameras in the cabin to allow flight crew to monitor activity in the cabin without leaving the flight deck
- Additional technology used to alert Air Traffic Control of a hijacking situation

Q: Why don't you just order the airlines to make the necessary changes?

There are too many differences among aircraft designs to come up with a single improvement that will deny access to every cabin.

We want safety improved as quickly as possible, and airlines are in the best position to implement the best solutions in the shortest amount of time.

Q: Will the best ideas be shared among airlines?

The government will not make cockpit protection design details publicly available because of security reasons. However, the government will require that any technology or other solution that is funded be available for any airline to use. It would be inefficient to expect every airline to come up with their own solutions for every aircraft. We should share information so more passengers can be more safe as soon as possible.

Q: What other safety plans are being considered?

A task force convened by Secretary Mineta is already working on longer-term ideas that will enhance security and safety. Their report will be presented to the Secretary on Monday October 1.

Good morning everybody.

Attached is (1) a fact sheet on today's announcement by the President, and (2) a detailed Q&A on today's announcement. Let me know if you have any questions.

Enhancing Aviation Safety & Security

Fact Sheet

Expanded Federal Air Marshal Program:

Since September 11, the U.S. government has been steadily increasing the number of Federal Air Marshals using law enforcement officers loaned from various federal agencies. The President will continue to expand the Air Marshal program and seek congressional approval to make this expansion permanent. The requirements and qualifications of Federal Air Marshals are among the most stringent of any U.S. federal law enforcement agency.

Federal Grant Program to Strengthen Aircraft Security:

Effective October 1, 2001, a fund of $500 million will be established to finance aircraft modifications to delay or deny access to the cockpit. Funding may be provided through grants or cost sharing arrangements and will be used for a number of projects, including to develop and implement means to:

- Restrict opening of the cockpit door during flight;
- Fortify cockpit doors to deny access from the cabin to the pilots in the cockpit;
- Alert the cockpit crew to activity in the cabin; and
- Ensure continuous operation of the aircraft transponder in the event the crew faces an emergency.

Federal Management of Airport Security Services:

The President will work with Congress to put the federal government in charge of airport security and screening services.

The new security will be performed by a combination of federal and non-federal workforce, with federal uniformed personnel managing all operations and maintaining a visible presence at all commercial airports.

The federal government will:

- Establish new standards for security operations.
- Supervise the passenger and baggage security at the 420 commercial passenger airports nationwide.
- Perform intensive background checks and train and test screeners and security personnel.
- Purchase and maintain all equipment.
- Oversee patrolling of secure areas and monitoring of the quality of the airport's access controls.
- Work with other law enforcement authorities at the federal, state and local levels as well as serve as a key facilitator of coordination regarding homeland security.

Immediate Airport Security Measures:

Fully implementing the extensive security proposal may take four to six months. During that time, the President will help ensure that every airport has a strong security presence by asking the Governors of the 50 States to call up the National Guard – at the federal government's expense – to augment existing security staff at every commercial airport nationwide.

Prior to deployment the National Guard personnel will receive training in airport security techniques from the FAA.

Questions & Answers on the President's Agenda to Improve Aviation Safety

National Guard Deployment

Q: What is the goal of deploying the National Guard to airports?

To immediately deploy a trained, armed and highly visible federal presence to enhance security at the nation's commercial airports.

Q: How many National Guard personnel will be deployed?

Sufficient National Guard personnel to staff checkpoints (many composed of multiple adjacent screening stations) at about 420 airports nationwide (including territories and commonwealths).

Q: When will the National Guard deployment begin?

The President will ask governors to begin the deployments immediately.

Q: What kind of training will be provided?

FAA will design and deliver comprehensive training in National Guard Armories and on-the-job training at airports addressing:

- Legal and operational considerations of the checkpoint operation
- Courteous and efficient screening
- Safe handling of deadly or dangerous items
- Incident management
- Conflict resolution
- Screening techniques and equipment

Q: Who will pay for the costs associated with the mobilization?

The federal government will pay the entire costs of the mobilization

Q: What will be the duties, responsibilities, and authorities of the National Guard?

Provide a highly visible, armed deterrence at security checkpoints

- Monitor and reinforce the pre-existing checkpoint structure and operations
- Monitor alertness and performance, and in conjunction with the ground security coordinator, ensure corrective actions are taken as necessary
- Actively provide assistance to screeners and supervisors as necessary
- Assist in responding to and resolving routine contentious situations, when requested
- Assist local law enforcement conducting regular duties at the checkpoint, upon request.

- Evaluate checkpoint operations and provide observations and recommendations to the checkpoint supervisors and FAA.

Q: Why didn't the President federalize the National Guard?

Expansion of the Federal Air Marshal Program

Q: How many Federal Air Marshals were there before Sept. 11 and how many will there be under the new expansion?

The Federal Air Marshal force is now being significantly expanded. For reasons of national security, we are not able to divulge certain information – including their numbers, flights, training, funding levels, and weapons.

Q: Why didn't we have Federal Air Marshals on the hijacked flights?

Federal Air Marshals have always been deployed to the areas of greatest risk. Prior to Sept. 11 the greatest risk to U.S. carriers was believed to be outside of the U.S.

Q: What are the training and qualifications requirements for Air Marshals?

The requirements and qualifications of Federal Air Marshals are among the most stringent of any U.S. federal law enforcement agencies. In fact, they have the highest shooting qualification standards of all such agencies. These high and demanding standards will be maintained as we expand the program.

We are currently using a significant number of law enforcement officers from other agencies to serve as temporary air marshals as we expand the force. These officers have all received intensive training on the unique aspects of preventing hijackings.

Q: When will the new program be fully staffed?

While we are not able to divulge staffing numbers due to national security concerns, the dramatic expansion of the air marshal program will lead to improved aviation security for passengers and flight crews.

Q: What should someone do if he or she wants to become a Federal Air Marshal?

The response from the American public to our call for more Federal Air Marshals has been overwhelming and heart-warming. Volunteers can download an application from the FAA web-site. The address is: jobs.faa.gov. Our latest tally showed 5.2 million hits and more than 150,000 applications downloaded.

Aviation Security & Aircraft Modernization Grants

Q: What specific new activities will the government be undertaking?

The President will work with Congress to put the federal government in charge of airport security and screening services. The new security will be performed by a combination of federal and non-federal workforce, with federal uniformed personnel managing all operations and maintaining a visible presence at all commercial airports.

The federal government will:

- Establish new standards for security operations.
- Supervise the passenger and baggage security at the 420 commercial passenger airports nationwide.
- Perform intensive background checks and train and test screeners and security personnel.
- Purchase and maintain all equipment.
- Oversee patrolling of secure areas and monitoring of the quality of the airport's access controls.
- Work with other law enforcement authorities at the federal, state and local levels as well as serve as a key facilitator of coordination regarding homeland security.

Q: What are the grants to be used for?

Effective October 1, 2001, a fund of $500 million will be established to finance aircraft modifications to delay or deny access to the cockpit. Funding may be provided through grants, cost sharing or other arrangements and will be used for a number of projects, including to develop and implement means to:

- Restrict opening of the cockpit door during flight;
- Fortify cockpit doors to deny access from the cabin to the pilots in the cockpit;
- Alert the cockpit crew to activity in the cabin; and
- Ensure continuous operation of the aircraft transponder in the event the crew faces an emergency.

Q: Who is eligible for the grants?

The objective of this grant program is to quickly make modifications to airplanes that prohibit unwanted entry to the cockpit.

Since the airlines are responsible for making the necessary changes to their airplanes, applications will only be accepted from the airlines. Initially, only U.S. airlines will be eligible for the grants. Individuals and groups outside the airline community with designs that they believe prohibit entry to the cockpit should work directly with the airlines to make their designs known.

Q: Why aren't foreign carriers that fly into and out of the U.S. eligible?

The objective is to identify immediate changes that can be made to prohibit unwanted entry into the cockpit. Under international law, the country that operates the airplane is primarily responsible for its design and operation. So, changes to international airplanes need to be coordinated with those authorities. The US government will work closely and share ideas and information on safety and cockpit protections with all foreign authorities.

Q: How will the grant funds be awarded?

DOT Secretary Mineta will work with the Federal Aviation Administration to establish a Board that will apply a set of discrete criteria that will ensure the fair and equitable distribution of the funds. The award will be based upon the applicant's ability to meet defined requirements that will be specified in the award criteria. Applicants must be able to demonstrate their ability to design, develop, and/or install the safety enhancement within an established timeframe. Applicants must be able to demonstrate that the product can be applied across the aviation industry. Funds will be awarded through established processes to quickly disburse Federal funds.

Q: What kind of projects can be funded in the short term?

There have already been ideas presented by some airlines to provide protection against intrusion: Examples of these ideas include:

- Deadbolts, bars, nets or similar devices across the inside of the flight deck doors
- Video cameras in the cabin to allow flight crew to monitor activity in the cabin without leaving the flight deck
- Additional technology used to alert Air Traffic Control of a hijacking situation

Q: Why don't you just order the airlines to make the necessary changes?

There are too many differences among aircraft designs to come up with a single improvement that will deny access to every cabin.

We want safety improved as quickly as possible, and airlines are in the best position to implement the best solutions in the shortest amount of time.

Q: Will the best ideas be shared among airlines?

The government will not make cockpit protection design details publicly available because of security reasons. However, the government will require that any technology or other solution that is funded be available for any airline to use. It would be inefficient to expect every airline to come up with their own solutions for every aircraft. We should share information so more passengers can be more safe as soon as possible.

Q: What other safety plans are being considered?

A task force convened by Secretary Mineta is already working on longer-term ideas that will enhance security and safety. Their report will be presented to the Secretary on Monday October 1.

Attached is a Q&A to help you answer questions about the FAA policy regarding aircraft who enter restricted or prohibited airspace.

Questions & Answers on New Aircraft Guidelines

Q: Why is this change being made?

New national security concerns require that the airspace above some areas in the United States become restricted and/or prohibited to air carrier or private aircraft.

Q: What is a "Restricted Area?"

Restricted Area: Airspace designated under FAA Regulations (FAR Part 73), within which flight of aircraft, while not wholly prohibited, is subject to restriction. Existing restricted areas are clearly depicted on "enroute" charts and are a part of routine trip planning for pilots. However, as the restricted and prohibited areas will now be updated periodically, every pilot must take steps to find out where these zones are located and to observe them scrupulously whenever they fly.

Q: What is a "Prohibited Area?"

Prohibited Area: Airspace designated under FAR Part 73 within which no person may operate an aircraft without permission of the using agency. For example, the US Capitol area is defined as Prohibited area 56 (P-56).

Q: What is under the new airspace that is so important?

Key industrial assets and areas that are important to protect for national security.

Q: What specifically is new in the change?

Prior to September 11, 2001, when an aircraft transited through an active restricted or prohibited area, intentionally or unintentionally, warnings were provided by Air Traffic Control when the aircraft was under surveillance and control. Ultimately, pilot certificate revocation and/or civil penalties by FAA Flight Standards, were possible.

Under the new change, pilots who enter prohibited or restricted airspace – or are flying in a suspicious manner – may be intercepted by military aircraft. In these situations pilots must strictly adhere to interception procedures in the Aeronautical Information Manual and any instructions provided by the military or FAA controllers. Failure to follow these instructions could result in the use of deadly force.

Q: What are the exact procedures published in the Aeronautical Information Manual that pilots are to follow if intercepted?

An aircraft which is intercepted by another aircraft shall immediately:

1. Follow the instructions given by the intercepting aircraft, interpreting and responding to the visual signals.

2. Notify, if possible, the appropriate air traffic services unit.

{PRIVATE "TYPE=PICT;ALT=aim0506_Auto1"}

3. Attempt to establish radio communication with the intercepting aircraft or with the appropriate intercept control unit, by making a general call on the emergency frequency 243.0 MHz and repeating this call on the emergency frequency 121.5 MHz, if practicable, giving the identity and position of the aircraft and the nature of the flight.

4. If equipped with SSR transponder, select MODE 3/A Code 7700, unless otherwise instructed by the appropriate air traffic services unit. If any instructions received by radio from any sources conflict with those given by the intercepting aircraft by visual or radio signals, the intercepted aircraft shall request immediate clarification while continuing to comply with the instructions given by the intercepting aircraft.

Q: What is the exact definition of "deadly" or "lethal" force?

A pilot who enters prohibited or restricted airspace and does not comply with the military intercept procedures could be shot down as a last resort.

Q: What are the current rules of engagement and interception when a plane enters prohibited or restricted airspace?

The FAA has interception policies for a few specific activities such as hijacks in the Airman's Information Manual, but not for unauthorized entrance into restricted or prohibited areas.

Q: How are the new rules different?

Aircraft operating in the United States have never been subject to intentional "harmful" penalties for entering into a restricted or prohibited area.

Q: Does this affect commercial and private pilots?

Yes. However, air carrier pilots are under the supervision of air traffic control who ensure that flight paths do not conflict with restricted or prohibited airspace.

Q: How will pilots be alerted of this change?

Every step possible will be taken to ensure that private pilots learn of the changes. Airline pilots are always under air traffic control supervision so the main notification concerns are for private pilots.

A Notice to Airmen (NOTAM) will be issued which will be sent to every Air Traffic Control Facility and to Flight Service Stations for pilot briefings. NOTAMs are the primary way pilots are contacted with important new changes. In addition, contact with the numerous association groups representing pilots in the U.S. will be made to ensure broad distribution of the new implications of unauthorized entry to Restricted and Prohibited areas. Special notification is being provided to general aviation airports. FAA, DOT and pilot association web sites will publish the information, and the news media will be alerted nationwide. In addition, the Administration intends to call attention to this policy through general news media.

Q: When will new aviation maps show the new changes?

This process will require 10-14 days to complete and will then fall into the normal 56-day charting cycle. A special charting process will be initiated to display each new prohibited area and to include the new warning statement to the pilot on each "enroute" chart.

Q: Will this bring harm to the general aviation industry?

There will invariably be some inconveniences for pilots who will have to divert away from prohibited or restricted airspace. However, the aviation should generally be able to accommodate these changes with little difficulty.

Q: Is this change permanent?

It will be indicated as "Until Further Notice" and will be reviewed periodically.

Attached is a Q&A to help you answer questions about the FAA policy regarding aircraft who enter restricted or prohibited airspace.

Questions & Answers on New Aircraft Guidelines

Q: Why is this change being made?

New national security concerns require that the airspace above some areas in the United States become restricted and/or prohibited to air carrier or private aircraft.

Q: What is a "Restricted Area?"

Restricted Area: Airspace designated under FAA Regulations (FAR Part 73), within which flight of aircraft, while not wholly prohibited, is subject to restriction. Existing restricted areas are clearly depicted on "enroute" charts and are a part of routine trip planning for pilots. However, as the restricted and prohibited areas will now be updated periodically, every pilot must take steps to find out where these zones are located and to observe them scrupulously whenever they fly.

Q: What is a "Prohibited Area?"

Prohibited Area: Airspace designated under FAR Part 73 within which no person may operate an aircraft without permission of the using agency. For example, the US Capitol area is defined as Prohibited area 56 (P-56).

Q: What is under the new airspace that is so important?

Key industrial assets and areas that are important to protect for national security.

Q: What specifically is new in the change?

Prior to September 11, 2001, when an aircraft transited through an active restricted or prohibited area, intentionally or unintentionally, warnings were provided by Air Traffic Control when the aircraft was under surveillance and control. Ultimately, pilot certificate revocation and/or civil penalties by FAA Flight Standards, were possible.

Under the new change, pilots who enter prohibited or restricted airspace – or are flying in a suspicious manner – may be intercepted by military aircraft. In these situations pilots must strictly adhere to interception procedures in the Aeronautical Information Manual and any instructions provided by the military or FAA controllers. Failure to follow these instructions could result in the use of deadly force.

Q: What are the exact procedures published in the Aeronautical Information Manual that pilots are to follow if intercepted?

An aircraft which is intercepted by another aircraft shall immediately:

1. Follow the instructions given by the intercepting aircraft, interpreting and responding to the visual signals.

2. Notify, if possible, the appropriate air traffic services unit.

{PRIVATE "TYPE=PICT;ALT=aim0506_Auto1"}

3. Attempt to establish radio communication with the intercepting aircraft or with the appropriate intercept control unit, by making a general call on the emergency frequency 243.0 MHz and repeating this call on the emergency frequency 121.5 MHz, if practicable, giving the identity and position of the aircraft and the nature of the flight.

4. If equipped with SSR transponder, select MODE 3/A Code 7700, unless otherwise instructed by the appropriate air traffic services unit. If any instructions received by radio from any sources conflict with those given by the intercepting aircraft by visual or radio signals, the intercepted aircraft shall request immediate clarification while continuing to comply with the instructions given by the intercepting aircraft.

Q: What is the exact definition of "deadly" or "lethal" force?

A pilot who enters prohibited or restricted airspace and does not comply with the military intercept procedures could be shot down as a last resort.

Q: What are the current rules of engagement and interception when a plane enters prohibited or restricted airspace?

The FAA has interception policies for a few specific activities such as hijacks in the Airman's Information Manual, but not for unauthorized entrance into restricted or prohibited areas.

Q: How are the new rules different?

Aircraft operating in the United States have never been subject to intentional "harmful" penalties for entering into a restricted or prohibited area.

Q: Does this affect commercial and private pilots?

Yes. However, air carrier pilots are under the supervision of air traffic control who ensure that flight paths do not conflict with restricted or prohibited airspace.

Q: How will pilots be alerted of this change?

Every step possible will be taken to ensure that private pilots learn of the changes. Airline pilots are always under air traffic control supervision so the main notification concerns are for private pilots.

A Notice to Airmen (NOTAM) will be issued which will be sent to every Air Traffic Control Facility and to Flight Service Stations for pilot briefings. NOTAMs are the primary way pilots are contacted with important new changes. In addition, contact with the numerous association groups representing pilots in the U.S. will be made to ensure broad distribution of the new implications of unauthorized entry to Restricted and Prohibited areas. Special notification is being provided to general aviation airports. FAA, DOT and pilot association web sites will publish the information, and the news media will be alerted nationwide. In addition, the Administration intends to call attention to this policy through general news media.

Q: When will new aviation maps show the new changes?

This process will require 10-14 days to complete and will then fall into the normal 56-day charting cycle. A special charting process will be initiated to display each new prohibited area and to include the new warning statement to the pilot on each "enroute" chart.

Q: Will this bring harm to the general aviation industry?

There will invariably be some inconveniences for pilots who will have to divert away from prohibited or restricted airspace. However, the aviation should generally be able to accommodate these changes with little difficulty.

Q: Is this change permanent?

It will be indicated as "Until Further Notice" and will be reviewed periodically.

Attached is a Q&A to help you answer questions about the FAA policy regarding aircraft who enter restricted or prohibited airspace.

Questions & Answers on New Aircraft Guidelines

Q: Why is this change being made?

New national security concerns require that the airspace above some areas in the United States become restricted and/or prohibited to air carrier or private aircraft.

Q: What is a "Restricted Area?"

Restricted Area: Airspace designated under FAA Regulations (FAR Part 73), within which flight of aircraft, while not wholly prohibited, is subject to restriction. Existing restricted areas are clearly depicted on "enroute" charts and are a part of routine trip planning for pilots. However, as the restricted and prohibited areas will now be updated periodically, every pilot must take steps to find out where these zones are located and to observe them scrupulously whenever they fly.

Q: What is a "Prohibited Area?"

Prohibited Area: Airspace designated under FAR Part 73 within which no person may operate an aircraft without permission of the using agency. For example, the US Capitol area is defined as Prohibited area 56 (P-56).

Q: What is under the new airspace that is so important?

Key industrial assets and areas that are important to protect for national security.

Q: What specifically is new in the change?

Prior to September 11, 2001, when an aircraft transited through an active restricted or prohibited area, intentionally or unintentionally, warnings were provided by Air Traffic Control when the aircraft was under surveillance and control. Ultimately, pilot certificate revocation and/or civil penalties by FAA Flight Standards, were possible.

Under the new change, pilots who enter prohibited or restricted airspace – or are flying in a suspicious manner – may be intercepted by military aircraft. In these situations pilots must strictly adhere to interception procedures in the Aeronautical Information Manual and any instructions provided by the military or FAA controllers. Failure to follow these instructions could result in the use of deadly force.

Q: What are the exact procedures published in the Aeronautical Information Manual that pilots are to follow if intercepted?

An aircraft which is intercepted by another aircraft shall immediately:

1. Follow the instructions given by the intercepting aircraft, interpreting and responding to the visual signals.

2. Notify, if possible, the appropriate air traffic services unit.

{PRIVATE "TYPE=PICT;ALT=aim0506_Auto1"}

3. Attempt to establish radio communication with the intercepting aircraft or with the appropriate intercept control unit, by making a general call on the emergency frequency 243.0 MHz and repeating this call on the emergency frequency 121.5 MHz, if practicable, giving the identity and position of the aircraft and the nature of the flight.

4. If equipped with SSR transponder, select MODE 3/A Code 7700, unless otherwise instructed by the appropriate air traffic services unit. If any instructions received by radio from any sources conflict with those given by the intercepting aircraft by visual or radio signals, the intercepted aircraft shall request immediate clarification while continuing to comply with the instructions given by the intercepting aircraft.

Q: What is the exact definition of "deadly" or "lethal" force?

A pilot who enters prohibited or restricted airspace and does not comply with the military intercept procedures could be shot down as a last resort.

Q: What are the current rules of engagement and interception when a plane enters prohibited or restricted airspace?

The FAA has interception policies for a few specific activities such as hijacks in the Airman's Information Manual, but not for unauthorized entrance into restricted or prohibited areas.

Q: How are the new rules different?

Aircraft operating in the United States have never been subject to intentional "harmful" penalties for entering into a restricted or prohibited area.

Q: Does this affect commercial and private pilots?

Yes. However, air carrier pilots are under the supervision of air traffic control who ensure that flight paths do not conflict with restricted or prohibited airspace.

Q: How will pilots be alerted of this change?

Every step possible will be taken to ensure that private pilots learn of the changes. Airline pilots are always under air traffic control supervision so the main notification concerns are for private pilots.

A Notice to Airmen (NOTAM) will be issued which will be sent to every Air Traffic Control Facility and to Flight Service Stations for pilot briefings. NOTAMs are the primary way pilots are contacted with important new changes. In addition, contact with the numerous association groups representing pilots in the U.S. will be made to ensure broad distribution of the new implications of unauthorized entry to Restricted and Prohibited areas. Special notification is being provided to general aviation airports. FAA, DOT and pilot association web sites will publish the information, and the news media will be alerted nationwide. In addition, the Administration intends to call attention to this policy through general news media.

Q: When will new aviation maps show the new changes?

This process will require 10-14 days to complete and will then fall into the normal 56-day charting cycle. A special charting process will be initiated to display each new prohibited area and to include the new warning statement to the pilot on each "enroute" chart.

Q: Will this bring harm to the general aviation industry?

There will invariably be some inconveniences for pilots who will have to divert away from prohibited or restricted airspace. However, the aviation should generally be able to accommodate these changes with little difficulty.

Q: Is this change permanent?

It will be indicated as "Until Further Notice" and will be reviewed periodically.

Good morning everybody.

Attached is (1) a fact sheet on today's announcement by the President, and (2) a detailed Q&A on today's announcement. Let me know if you have any questions.

Enhancing Aviation Safety & Security

Fact Sheet

Expanded Federal Air Marshal Program:

Since September 11, the U.S. government has been steadily increasing the number of Federal Air Marshals using law enforcement officers loaned from various federal agencies. The President will continue to expand the Air Marshal program and seek congressional approval to make this expansion permanent. The requirements and qualifications of Federal Air Marshals are among the most stringent of any U.S. federal law enforcement agency.

Federal Grant Program to Strengthen Aircraft Security:

Effective October 1, 2001, a fund of $500 million will be established to finance aircraft modifications to delay or deny access to the cockpit. Funding may be provided through grants or cost sharing arrangements and will be used for a number of projects, including to develop and implement means to:

- Restrict opening of the cockpit door during flight;
- Fortify cockpit doors to deny access from the cabin to the pilots in the cockpit;
- Alert the cockpit crew to activity in the cabin; and
- Ensure continuous operation of the aircraft transponder in the event the crew faces an emergency.

Federal Management of Airport Security Services:

The President will work with Congress to put the federal government in charge of airport security and screening services.

The new security will be performed by a combination of federal and non-federal workforce, with federal uniformed personnel managing all operations and maintaining a visible presence at all commercial airports.

The federal government will:

- Establish new standards for security operations.
- Supervise the passenger and baggage security at the 420 commercial passenger airports nationwide.
- Perform intensive background checks and train and test screeners and security personnel.
- Purchase and maintain all equipment.
- Oversee patrolling of secure areas and monitoring of the quality of the airport's access controls.
- Work with other law enforcement authorities at the federal, state and local levels as well as serve as a key facilitator of coordination regarding homeland security.

Immediate Airport Security Measures:

Fully implementing the extensive security proposal may take four to six months. During that time, the President will help ensure that every airport has a strong security presence by asking the Governors of the 50 States to call up the National Guard – at the federal government's expense – to augment existing security staff at every commercial airport nationwide.

Prior to deployment the National Guard personnel will receive training in airport security techniques from the FAA.

Questions & Answers on the President's Agenda to Improve Aviation Safety

National Guard Deployment

Q: What is the goal of deploying the National Guard to airports?

To immediately deploy a trained, armed and highly visible federal presence to enhance security at the nation's commercial airports.

Q: How many National Guard personnel will be deployed?

Sufficient National Guard personnel to staff checkpoints (many composed of multiple adjacent screening stations) at about 420 airports nationwide (including territories and commonwealths).

Q: When will the National Guard deployment begin?

The President will ask governors to begin the deployments immediately.

Q: What kind of training will be provided?

FAA will design and deliver comprehensive training in National Guard Armories and on-the-job training at airports addressing:

- Legal and operational considerations of the checkpoint operation
- Courteous and efficient screening
- Safe handling of deadly or dangerous items
- Incident management
- Conflict resolution
- Screening techniques and equipment

Q: Who will pay for the costs associated with the mobilization?

The federal government will pay the entire costs of the mobilization

Q: What will be the duties, responsibilities, and authorities of the National Guard?

Provide a highly visible, armed deterrence at security checkpoints

- Monitor and reinforce the pre-existing checkpoint structure and operations
- Monitor alertness and performance, and in conjunction with the ground security coordinator, ensure corrective actions are taken as necessary
- Actively provide assistance to screeners and supervisors as necessary
- Assist in responding to and resolving routine contentious situations, when requested
- Assist local law enforcement conducting regular duties at the checkpoint, upon request.

- Evaluate checkpoint operations and provide observations and recommendations to the checkpoint supervisors and FAA.

Q: Why didn't the President federalize the National Guard?

Because mobilization through the governors gives the National Guard additional civilian law enforcement powers.

Expansion of the Federal Air Marshal Program

Q: How many Federal Air Marshals were there before Sept. 11 and how many will there be under the new expansion?

The Federal Air Marshal force is now being significantly expanded. For reasons of national security, we are not able to divulge certain information – including their numbers, flights, training, funding levels, and weapons.

Q: Why didn't we have Federal Air Marshals on the hijacked flights?

Federal Air Marshals have always been deployed to the areas of greatest risk. Prior to Sept. 11 the greatest risk to U.S. carriers was believed to be outside of the U.S.

Q: What are the training and qualifications requirements for Air Marshals?

The requirements and qualifications of Federal Air Marshals are among the most stringent of any U.S. federal law enforcement agencies. In fact, they have the highest shooting qualification standards of all such agencies. These high and demanding standards will be maintained as we expand the program.

We are currently using a significant number of law enforcement officers from other agencies to serve as temporary air marshals as we expand the force. These officers have all received intensive training on the unique aspects of preventing hijackings.

Q: When will the new program be fully staffed?

While we are not able to divulge staffing numbers due to national security concerns, the dramatic expansion of the air marshal program will lead to improved aviation security for passengers and flight crews.

Q: What should someone do if he or she wants to become a Federal Air Marshal?

The response from the American public to our call for more Federal Air Marshals has been overwhelming and heart-warming. Volunteers can download an application from the FAA web-site. The address is: jobs.faa.gov. Our latest tally showed 5.2 million hits and more than 150,000 applications downloaded.

Aviation Security & Aircraft Modernization Grants

Q: What specific new activities will the government be undertaking?

The President will work with Congress to put the federal government in charge of airport security and screening services. The new security will be performed by a combination of federal and non-federal workforce, with federal uniformed personnel managing all operations and maintaining a visible presence at all commercial airports.

The federal government will:

- Establish new standards for security operations.
- Supervise the passenger and baggage security at the 420 commercial passenger airports nationwide.
- Perform intensive background checks and train and test screeners and security personnel.
- Purchase and maintain all equipment.
- Oversee patrolling of secure areas and monitoring of the quality of the airport's access controls.
- Work with other law enforcement authorities at the federal, state and local levels as well as serve as a key facilitator of coordination regarding homeland security.

Q: What are the grants to be used for?

Effective October 1, 2001, a fund of $500 million will be established to finance aircraft modifications to delay or deny access to the cockpit. Funding may be provided through grants, cost sharing or other arrangements and will be used for a number of projects, including to develop and implement means to:

- Restrict opening of the cockpit door during flight;
- Fortify cockpit doors to deny access from the cabin to the pilots in the cockpit;
- Alert the cockpit crew to activity in the cabin; and
- Ensure continuous operation of the aircraft transponder in the event the crew faces an emergency.

Q: Who is eligible for the grants?

The objective of this grant program is to quickly make modifications to airplanes that prohibit unwanted entry to the cockpit.

Since the airlines are responsible for making the necessary changes to their airplanes, applications will only be accepted from the airlines. Initially, only U.S. airlines will be eligible for the grants. Individuals and groups outside the airline community with designs that they believe prohibit entry to the cockpit should work directly with the airlines to make their designs known.

Q: Why aren't foreign carriers that fly into and out of the U.S. eligible?

The objective is to identify immediate changes that can be made to prohibit unwanted entry into the cockpit. Under international law, the country that operates the airplane is primarily responsible for its design and operation. So, changes to international airplanes need to be coordinated with those authorities. The US government will work closely and share ideas and information on safety and cockpit protections with all foreign authorities.

Q: How will the grant funds be awarded?

DOT Secretary Mineta will work with the Federal Aviation Administration to establish a Board that will apply a set of discrete criteria that will ensure the fair and equitable distribution of the funds. The award will be based upon the applicant's ability to meet defined requirements that will be specified in the award criteria. Applicants must be able to demonstrate their ability to design, develop, and/or install the safety enhancement within an established timeframe. Applicants must be able to demonstrate that the product can be applied across the aviation industry. Funds will be awarded through established processes to quickly disburse Federal funds.

Q: What kind of projects can be funded in the short term?

There have already been ideas presented by some airlines to provide protection against intrusion: Examples of these ideas include:

- Deadbolts, bars, nets or similar devices across the inside of the flight deck doors
- Video cameras in the cabin to allow flight crew to monitor activity in the cabin without leaving the flight deck
- Additional technology used to alert Air Traffic Control of a hijacking situation

Q: Why don't you just order the airlines to make the necessary changes?

There are too many differences among aircraft designs to come up with a single improvement that will deny access to every cabin.

We want safety improved as quickly as possible, and airlines are in the best position to implement the best solutions in the shortest amount of time.

Q: Will the best ideas be shared among airlines?

The government will not make cockpit protection design details publicly available because of security reasons. However, the government will require that any technology or other solution that is funded be available for any airline to use. It would be inefficient to expect every airline to come up with their own solutions for every aircraft. We should share information so more passengers can be more safe as soon as possible.

Q: What other safety plans are being considered?

A task force convened by Secretary Mineta is already working on longer-term ideas that will enhance security and safety. Their report will be presented to the Secretary on Monday October 1.

How about Ted Olson? He knows the bill, supports it enthusiastically, and knows it to be constitutional from top to bottom. He's also got a unique perspective on September 11, 2001.

Subject: Judiciary Comm. hearing

The Constitution Subcommittee, chaired by Senator Feingold, announced last night that it will hold a hearing next Wednesday, October 3, at 10:00 am entitled "Protecting Constitutional Freedoms in the Face of Terrorism." They have given us as Ranking Member very few details yet, but we can expect the focus to be on the constitutional and privacy issues surrounding the Administration's legislation to fight terrorism.

For witnesses, I am contacting possible professors, such as John Manning. Also, we need to decide if we want to have someone other than a legal expert to appear, such as a victim or broader terrorism expert. If you have any suggestions for witnesses we should call to defend the Administration or other thoughts about the hearing, please contact me. Thanks.

Should the Federal Government be Involved in the Market for Terrorism Insurance? And if so, What Principles Should Guide the Involvement?

Possible Rationales for Federal Intervention

- Possible market failure could lead to underprovision: Unlike natural disasters or other insurable events, it is extraordinarily difficult to estimate a loss distribution on which to base insurance prices. This could lead the private market to under-provide terrorism insurance.
  - The consequence of insurance underprovision is that some socially worthwhile economic activities will not occur, e.g., buildings that should be built may not be built.

- Samaritan's Dilemma: Without clear policies about the government's role, the default position will be for the federal government to step in and offer aid and assistance whenever terrorist's strike. Thus, "doing nothing" could be the quickest step towards nationalizing the cost of terrorism risk. An explicit policy towards terrorism insurance may actually reduce the government's ultimate liability.

- Federal Government incentives: The policies of the federal government (e.g., national security policy, foreign relations) directly affects the probability of a terrorist event. Some would argue that the government should therefore internalize part of the cost.

- Threats to national symbols: To the extent that terrorists target symbols of our nation's economic, political and military power, it can be viewed as an attack on the nation, not the symbol per se.

- Taxation is broadest risk spreading device: To the extent that these shocks are truly random, the right policy would be to spread the risk as thinly as possible. The "broadest back" in the U.S. is the entire taxpaying public.

Possible Rationales for Avoiding Federal Intervention

- Moral hazard and improper incentives: If government provides excess loss reinsurance for free (or at subsidized rates), then economic actors will not face the right incentives, and we get inefficient outcomes. Examples:
  - This would implicitly subsidize the concentration of economic activity (in big cities, tall buildings, dense areas) → overproduction of "targets of terror"
  - May result in sub-optimal investment in security or other prevention activities.

- Crowd-out of private insurance markets: The private insurance market has, in the past, proven its ability to expand capacity in response to new information. Government overreaching could dampen such innovation. Example:

- Prior to Hurricane Andrew and Northridge, most reinsurance coverage was in place for small events; few insurers protected themselves against industry losses of more than $10 billion
- Today, protection of industry losses of $20-25 billion or more is common.

- Government cannot "solve" the market failure: To a large extent, the same information constraints that limit the private market's ability to estimate a loss distribution also apply to the government.

- Increased regulation of private markets: Even if the government acts only as the reinsurer of last resort, it could impose additional costs / regulations on the entire market. Examples:
  - The Pool Re model in the UK: HM Treasury is the insurer of last resort, in effect providing excess loss insurance. In order to avoid having insured parties and insurance companies off-load only its worst risks on the Pool (adverse selection), Treasury and Pool Re must impose uniform underwriting and pricing standards on the industry.

- Federalism issues: Insurance regulation in the U.S. is currently a state-level responsibility. Federal government involvement will likely necessitate federal regulation.

Principles for Intervention (if government intervention is pursued)

- Enhance private market's capacity to absorb and diversify risk
  - Reduce regulatory and tax barriers that inhibit US based reinsurance.
  - Reduce impediments to securitization of risks.
  - Discourage state level regulations that are obstacles to developing national markets for risk.

- Reduce private sector uncertainty about liabilities that arise from litigation.
  - Consider consolidation of claims in a single jurisdiction.
  - Place reasonable limitations on extent of private sector liabilities.

- If the federal government directly provides insurance, it should not do it for free. In effect, the UK Pool Re concept places a call option on HM Treasury, and provides this call option at a zero price.
  - Government should charge the private market premiums for being the insurer of last resort.
  - Market signals can be used to guide pricing. For example:
    - The federal government agrees to cover all losses (L) in excess of some predetermined amount (X). When the loss exceeds the private sector cap, the government pays the excess loss (L-X).
    - The government charges a premium for this reinsurance.

- To determine the market price, the government could securitize a very small fraction (e.g., 1%) of the excess loss and sell it in the private market, such as through a special treasury bond issuance that pays a higher rate of interest, but the principal of which is (partially) forfeited if the excess loss is triggered.

I agree with you, John. Please note that, given COnyers blanket objection ot the DP, House Jud. will probably have to carve out death from these extensions of the conspiracy penalties.

All:

Yesterday I received via someone in OLA questions from Sampak Garg of the House Judiciary Committee staff. One of Garg's questions was "are there any new death penalties, in any sense of the word." I suppose that what he's getting at with that strange locution "in any sense of the word," is our provision that extends the same penalties for conspiracy and attempt as for the underlying offense, Section 303. Unless Section 303 provision is modified, the death penalty would be available, where it was not before, for the following offenses:

conspiracy to commit violence at international airports where that violence results in death (18 USC 37); conspiracy to maliciously destroy property used in interstate or foreign commerce by fire or explosive where it results in death (844(i)); conspiracy to murder an official of the United States (1114); and conspiracy to murder a national of the United States who is outside the United States (if first-degree) (2332).

We might want to get someone to double-check my work, but I believe that for all the other offenses in our list that had the death penalty, provision was already made for the death penalty for attempt or conspiracy.

The Constitution Subcommittee, chaired by Senator Feingold, announced last night that it will hold a hearing next Wednesday, October 3, at 10:00 am entitled "Protecting Constitutional Freedoms in the Face of Terrorism." They have given us as Ranking Member very few details yet, but we can expect the focus to be on the constitutional and privacy issues surrounding the Administration's legislation to fight terrorism.

For witnesses, I am contacting possible professors, such as John Manning. Also, we need to decide if we want to have someone other than a legal expert to appear, such as a victim or broader terrorism expert. If you have any suggestions for witnesses we should call to defend the Administration or other thoughts about the hearing, please contact me. Thanks.

We are researching options and will be giving Peter a memo this a.m. My guess is we will be recommending a limited, "bridge" program to get us over the immediate problem of terrorism coverage exclusions and provide some breathing room to evaluate more aggressive proposals, e.g., the AIA's idea to set up a federally backed re-insurance pool, next year.

Insurance Industry –
Government Intervention in Response to Terrorism

DRAFT -- TIME -- DRAFT

Draft -- Pre-Decisional Staff Working Paper -- Draft

Objectives of Government Intervention

- Ensure that the terrorist attacks of September 11 and the potential for future terrorist attacks have a minimal impact on economic activity by ensuring uninterrupted availability of property and casualty insurance coverage for acts of terrorism.
- Limit any potential government loss exposure to clearly identifiable losses and a fixed amount (or fixed proportion of losses) per incident or underwriting year.
- Limit to market segments that the private sector will not insure.

Principles Guiding Government Intervention

- Encourage private sector initiatives to mitigate risk.
- Preserve private sector risk assessments and pricing to the greatest degree possible.
- Provide for some degree of compensation to the government for its risk exposure.
- Sunset government involvement once the private sector is capable of providing insurance coverage.

Options for Government Intervention

Minimal Government Intervention

A. Remove regulatory impediments to the development of the risk securitization market

- Provide federal clarification that catastrophe bonds are a financial vehicle that is not subject to state insurance regulation.
- Streamline tax and other regulations to encourage creation of on-shore special purpose vehicles used in catastrophe bonds.
- Provide tax benefits to catastrophe bonds (both for terrorist events and natural disasters).

Pros

- Relies on private capital markets.

Cons

- No evidence that private capital markets could provide the coverage needed quickly enough in the current environment. It suffers from the same information uncertainties inhibiting insurance and reinsurance companies.

B. Enact tax law changes (in terms of structure or relief) that improve the loss absorbing capacity of insurance companies.

Pros

- Relies on existing private infrastructure.

Cons

- Tax benefits may be insufficient to keep companies in the game.
- Tax benefits can be hard to remove once in place and have tendency to spread.

C. Limit types and amount of damage claims that are available from a terrorist incident. Damage claims greater than the cap would be determined though a government based claims process. (Based loosely on Price-Anderson)

Pros

- Makes insurance company risks more manageable.
- Clear approach that limits government exposure.

Cons

- Leaves unknown amount of risk exposure that is uninsured.
- Remaining risk exposure could impair capital markets. For instance, would commercial mortgage lenders extend credit on buildings with potential limits on insurance coverage that leave the lender exposed?

Modest Government Intervention

D. Provide Federal Reinsurance Coverage to an Industry Terrorism Reinsurance Pool (based on the UK's Pool Re model) – The federal government would provide reinsurance to a terrorism reinsurance pool operated by the insurance industry. The AIA proposal is based in part on the UK's Pool Re model.

Pros

- Has industry support.
- Based on a model that has worked in the UK.
- Provides first-loss coverage through the industry pool.
- Provides mechanism for establishing a broad risk pool and industry, not government, pricing, of insurance.

Cons

- Could take months to make fully operational.
- Has characteristics of a GSE for insurance, suggesting it would grow over time while further extending the government's ultimate backstop.
- Puts the government in the role of ensuring no adverse selection.

E. Provide Federal Reinsurance with Ex-Post Pricing that Shares the Cost of Actual Losses Between Taxpayers and all P&C Insurance Carriers (based on the Price-Anderson Act Model) – For a temporary period, have the federal government offer reinsurance to the pool described in the previous option but do not require the pool to build reserves. Losses from a terrorist incident above some threshold amount would be reinsured by the government through the pool. Actual claims would be initially financed by Treasury and premiums would then be assessed pro rata on the pool participants in the next year (or years). Loss sharing with taxpayers could be established to limit losses put back to the industry.

Pros

- Eliminates idle capital.
- Avoids deadweight losses from mispriced insurance.
- Could quickly be made operational and easily sunset or replaced by more permanent legislation.

Cons

- Ex post pricing makes the insurance free up front, which increases moral hazard.
- Industry (and accountants?) could have difficulty handling a large future premium - unclear how they could/would reserve for such contingencies ex ante.
- Contingent deferred premiums could impact coverage levels and premium costs, thus reducing the amount of insurance available.

F. Sell Federal Reinsurance Directly to Insurers (similar to disaster insurance proposals) – The federal government would sell federal reinsurance (either with fixed pricing or through an auction process) that would be tied to insurance company losses from terrorist attacks.

Pros

- Ensures availability of P&C insurance coverage.
- Socializes the costs.

Cons

- Requires a government bureaucracy be created to initiate and manage thousands of individual reinsurance contracts with individual carriers.
- Crowds out any possible private market for terrorist reinsurance.
- Difficult to mimic market-based pricing or risk-taking incentives, leading to potential moral hazard problems.

G. Provide Federal Reinsurance through State-Based Plans (based on FAIR Act Approach) – The FAIR Act (passed in response to riots and civil disorders of the 1960s) set up a structure whereby each state would set up a plan to assure access to insurance requirements. The state plans were reinsured by the federal government through FEMA.

Pros

- Works within the existing state regulatory structure.
- Less bureaucracy than dealing with individual insurance companies.

Cons

- The states need to each set up a plan, and the federal government needs to approve the plans.
- Reinsurance rates must be determined by the government.

Direct Government Intervention

H. Directly Underwrite and Sell Terrorism Insurance Coverage (based on a War Damages Corporation approach) – Terrorism insurance would be underwritten by a government agency and sold directly to customers by insurance companies.

Pros

- Provides certainty that terrorism risks will be covered.

Cons

- Government pricing of insurance risks.

- Potential for lack of underwriting discipline and increased government risk exposure.
- Requires a government bureaucracy.

I. Provide Direct Government Insurance for Terrorist Attacks Through a Proportional Risk-Sharing Arrangement with the Insurance Industry (based on a Federal Crop Insurance approach) –Under Federal Crop Insurance, the federal government shares in premiums and the risks on a proportional basis with private insurers. The federal government also provides back-up reinsurance based on the financial condition of insurers that participate in the program.

Pros

- Provides certainty that terrorism risks will be covered.
- Private sector involvement may improve pricing and risk management.

Cons

- Government risk sharing (if large enough) may weaken private sector incentives.
- Proportional risk sharing may weaken private sector incentives in comparison to excess loss risk sharing.
- Requires a government bureaucracy.

Other Issues in Providing Government Terrorism Insurance

- Defining a Terrorist Incident – The government (perhaps the Treasury Secretary in consultation with federal law enforcement) should have the final authority in determining if an incident was caused by terrorist activities.

- Limiting Government Claims Above a Certain Dollar Amount – In order to limit the government's liability, provisions that trigger tort reforms when losses exceed a certain threshold, e.g., $10 billion, should be put in place. These provisions would include consolidating all claims in one jurisdiction; and limiting types of damages (e.g., only money damages).

Price-Anderson Act

(42 U.S.C. 2014)

Purpose -- To encourage the development of the nuclear industry and to ensure prompt and equitable compensation in the event of a nuclear incident.

Coverage -- For licensed nuclear power plants indemnified by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC), the Act provides for three tiers of protection against third party "public liability arising from a nuclear incident" (covering "any legal liability" with certain exceptions):

(1) Private insurance: Each reactor must purchase the maximum private insurance commercially available (currently $200 million).
(2) Retrospective pooling: If damage from an incident exceeds $200 million, each of the 110 reactors is assessed a pro-rata share of the excess up to $83.9 million, capped at $10 million per year per reactor ($83.9x 110= $9.23 billion pool+ $200 million= $9.43 billion coverage cap to the industry). The NRC may in specified circumstances, on a case-by-case basis, postpone all or part of the annual deferred premium. NRC also may provide reinsurance or guarantee payment of deferred premiums if there is a shortfall. In that event, NRC must advance necessary funds based on a Congressional appropriation or (to the extent approved in appropriation Acts) by issuing obligations to the Treasury.
(3) Government commitment: If damage exceeds $9.43 billion, the Act contains a moral commitment from Congress to provide full and prompt compensation to the public, based on a plan the President submits.

[For contractors and suppliers indemnified by the Department of Energy, the Act provides full indemnification up to $9.43 billion without private insurance. In effect, the government self-insures against nuclear incidents from contractual activities conducted on its behalf.]

Basis of Liability -- Liability is based on state tort laws of the jurisdiction where the incident occurs. Since many states provide strict liability for ultrahazardous activities, it's possible that liability for a nuclear incident could be established without fault. For "extraordinary nuclear occurrences," the Act requires waiver of certain defenses so that claimants need not prove fault and defendants may not claim charitable or sovereign immunity. In limited situations, the Act supercedes state law with uniform rules such as a limitation on awarding punitive damages or the time in which claims may be brought.

Consolidated Jurisdiction -- Claims are consolidated in a single U.S. District Court where the incident occurs. This channels liability through one court to one source of funds, so there is no need to sue all potential defendants or allocate liability among multiple defendants.

International Coverage -- Damages for injuries suffered in other countries from incidents in the U.S. may be sought in U.S. courts under the Act. The Act cannot control liability exposure in other countries.

Sunset -- The Act sunsets provisions permitting coverage for potential licensees and new contracts. Congress renewed and amended the 1957 Act in 1966, 1969, 1975, and 1988.

Pool Re (Pool Reinsurance Co. Ltd.)

Purpose -- To create an independent, mutual reinsurance company backed by the government that provides reinsurance to member companies for property loss and business interruption due to fire and explosion from "acts of terrorism" (primarily car bombs) that the insurance and reinsurance markets would not otherwise insure. Since its inception in 1993, Pool Re has covered three major losses for a total of 600 million pounds.

Participants -- Member companies are insurers (and Lloyd's syndicates) authorized to underwrite property insurance and business interruption for risks located in England, Wales and Scotland. Currently there are about 200 members, including all of the largest insurers in the U.K. commercial insurance market.

Reinsurance Coverage -- Members are required to offer reinsurance to first line insurers in excess of the retention, which is 100,000 pounds per "head of cover" per incident or 2.5 million pounds per policy per cover per incident. "Heads of cover" include: (1) buildings and completed structures, (2) other property (including contents, engineering contractors and computers), (3) business interruption, and (4) book debts (unclear how many heads of cover there actually are). Insureds have the option of buying protection beyond the 100,000 pounds of coverage, in which case the insurer cedes the additional premium to Pool Re, which assumes the risk.

Government (Retrocession) Liability -- Under the retrocession agreement, the government becomes liable to make payments to Pool Re when Pool Re's financial resources, including a [500 million] pound loan facility, have been exhausted. Members may reinsure only with Pool Re, which agrees to reinsure each member in excess of its retention. The Reinsurance (Acts of Terrorism) Act of 1993 enabled the Secretary for Trade and Industry to enter into the retrocession agreement with Pool Re subject to the consent of the Treasury. Pool Re's only retrocessionaire is the government.

Premiums -- Pool Re is funded through "market" rate premiums set by the government in exchange for the government underwriting excess exposure to the fund. Companies pay rates depending on the locations of risks in different geographic zones -- currently 150 pounds per million pounds of coverage in metropolitan areas, and 30 pounds per million of coverage in rural areas. The retrocession agreement provides that when Pool Re's funds reach one billion pounds, a retrocession premium becomes payable to the government. If Pool Re incurs an underwriting loss (an underwriting year is closed after three years), each member must pay an additional premium equivalent to 10% of the underwriting loss subject to a maximum of 10% of the premium income it paid to Pool Re for the underwriting year in question. If Pool Re makes an underwriting profit, each member is entitled to a 10% return premium.

Certification -- According to the retrocession agreement, the Secretary of State is required to provide a certificate to the effect that an "act of terrorism" has occurred for which indemnity is claimed under a reinsurance agreement.

Dispute resolution -- The agreements provide a dispute resolution procedure in addition to the usual arbitration clause.

(12 U.S.C. 1749bbb)

Purpose -- To create statewide plans to make essential property insurance more readily available in urban areas following the 1968 riots by providing Federal reinsurance for property losses arising from "riots or civil disorders." The statutory authority terminated in 1985, but 29 states still run FAIR programs.

Role of FEMA -- The FEMA Director, in consultation with a public-private Advisory Board, establishes and carries out the FAIR program, the Federal reinsurance program (including a "National Insurance Development Fund"), and a Federal crime insurance program, described below. FEMA reports to Congress at least annually on its operations under the Act.

Reinsurance -- FEMA is authorized to offer reinsurance from the National Insurance Development Fund to each insurer or pool for property losses arising from "riots or civil disorders." Reinsurance is offered only on "standard lines" of property insurance, as defined.

Premiums -- Insurers pay FEMA reinsurance premiums, determined by FEMA in consultation with the Advisory Board, for deposit into the Fund. FEMA thereafter may adjust premiums after consulting with the Advisory Board and the NAIC. The Fund can borrow from the Treasury to meet its needs.

Reimbursement for Losses -- The Act requires states to pass legislation stating that they will reimburse FEMA for any reinsured losses up to 5% of the aggregate property insurance premiums earned in that state during the previous year, to the extent the losses exceed the amount FEMA received in reinsurance premiums.

Federal Crime Insurance -- FEMA is required to critically review the market availability in each state of burglary and robbery insurance at affordable rates. If there is a critical unavailability, FEMA must make it available at affordable rates through the facilities of the Federal government after consulting with state insurance authorities in estimating what rates are affordable.

Participation in State FAIR Plans -- Participation in a state FAIR plan is required for an insurer to qualify for Federal reinsurance. (Most states also require property insurers to join the FAIR program before getting a certificate of authority to do business.) Each insurer wishing to participate in a FAIR program must cooperate with the appropriate state insurance authority in establishing and carrying out the FAIR plan. Plans are approved and administered by state insurance authorities. Plans must be run in a way that makes essential property insurance more readily available in urban areas. Plans must include various requirements regarding property inspection, reporting of reasons for declining coverage or requiring changes in the property, etc. A potential insured can request coverage under the program after being denied coverage otherwise.

War Damage Corporation Act
56 Stat. 174 (1942)

Purpose -- To establish WDC as a subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation (RFC) to provide property owners in the U.S. with reasonable insurance protection against loss or damage from enemy attack or U.S. military resistance during WWII, since basic fire and extended coverages contained a war risk exclusion.

History -- WDC was established in 1941 as the War Insurance Corporation and renamed the WDC in 1942. It is a subsidiary of the RFC, which was established by Congress in 1940 to aid in the national defense program. The WDC program grew from the War Risk Insurance Act of 1914 (38 Stat. 711), which provided insurance for maritime vessels and was amended in 1917 in response to WWI. WDC's charter and all policies expired in 1947. WDC's assets were liquidated by 1949, and in 1957 its stock was transferred to the Secretary of the Treasury for cancellation after all suits against the WDC had been settled.

Coverage -- The Act directs the RFC to empower the WDC to use its funds to provide, through insurance, reinsurance or otherwise, reasonable protection against loss or damage to real or personal property resulting from enemy attack or U.S. military resistance, with such exceptions as WDC, with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce, may deem advisable.

RFC Funding -- The Act directs the RFC, upon the request of the Secretary of Commerce and with the President's approval, to provide funds to WDC and issue obligations sufficient to carry out the Act's purposes. The aggregate amount of funds supplied by the RTC may not exceed $1 billion.

Premiums -- WDC protection would be made available upon the payment of such premium and subject to such terms and conditions as WDC may establish with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce.

Establishment of Rates -- In view of the national interest involved, the Act required WDC to establish from time to time uniform rates for each type of property for which protection was made available. To establish a basis for such uniform rates, the Act required WDC to estimate the average risk of loss on all property of such type in the U.S.

Limitation of Protection -- Protection was available only in the U.S., its territories and possessions, and other places determined by the President to be under U.S. dominion and control, and not to property on which the Maritime Commission was authorized to provide marine war-risk insurance. WDC, with approval of the Secretary of Commerce, could suspend or restrict protection in areas in consideration of loss of control by the U.S.

Losses Sustained between Dec. 7, 1941 and the Start-Up Date -- WDC was authorized to provide compensation without requiring an insurance contract or payment of premium, adjusting the loss as if a policy were in effect.

Insurance Industry –
Government Intervention in Response to Terrorism

DRAFT -- TIME -- DRAFT

Objectives of Government Intervention

- Ensure that the terrorist attacks of September 11 and the potential for future terrorist attacks have a minimal impact on economic activity by ensuring uninterrupted availability of property and casualty insurance coverage for acts of terrorism.

- Limit any potential government loss exposure to clearly identifiable losses and a fixed amount (or fixed proportion of losses) per incident or underwriting year.

- Limit to market segments that the private sector will not insure.

Principles Guiding Government Intervention

- Encourage private sector initiatives to mitigate risk.

- Preserve private sector risk assessments and pricing to the greatest degree possible.

- Provide for some degree of compensation to the government for its risk exposure.

- Sunset government involvement once the private sector is capable of providing insurance coverage.

Options for Government Intervention

Minimal Government Intervention

A. Remove regulatory impediments to the development of the risk securitization market

   - Provide federal clarification that catastrophe bonds are a financial vehicle that is not subject to state insurance regulation.

   - Streamline tax and other regulations to encourage creation of on-shore special purpose vehicles used in catastrophe bonds.

   - Provide tax benefits to catastrophe bonds (both for terrorist events and natural disasters).

Pros

- Relies on private capital markets.

Cons

- No evidence that private capital markets could provide the coverage needed quickly enough in the current environment. It suffers from the same information uncertainties inhibiting insurance and reinsurance companies.

B. Enact tax law changes (in terms of structure or relief) that improve the loss absorbing capacity of insurance companies.

Pros

- Relies on existing private infrastructure.

Cons

- Tax benefits may be insufficient to keep companies in the game.
- Tax benefits can be hard to remove once in place and have tendency to spread.

C. Limit types and amount of damage claims that are available from a terrorist incident. Damage claims greater than the cap would be determined though a government based claims process. (Based loosely on Price-Anderson)

Pros

- Makes insurance company risks more manageable.
- Clear approach that limits government exposure.

Cons

- Leaves unknown amount of risk exposure that is uninsured.
- Remaining risk exposure could impair capital markets. For instance, would commercial mortgage lenders extend credit on buildings with potential limits on insurance coverage that leave the lender exposed?

Modest Government Intervention

D. Provide Federal Reinsurance Coverage to an Industry Terrorism Reinsurance Pool (based on the UK's Pool Re model) – The federal government would provide reinsurance to a terrorism reinsurance pool operated by the insurance industry. The AIA proposal is based in part on the UK's Pool Re model.

Pros

- Has industry support.
- Based on a model that has worked in the UK.
- Provides first-loss coverage through the industry pool.
- Provides mechanism for establishing a broad risk pool and industry, not government, pricing, of insurance.

Cons

- Could take months to make fully operational.
- Has characteristics of a GSE for insurance, suggesting it would grow over time while further extending the government's ultimate backstop.
- Puts the government in the role of ensuring no adverse selection.

E. Provide Federal Reinsurance with Ex-Post Pricing that Shares the Cost of Actual Losses Between Taxpayers and all P&C Insurance Carriers (based on the Price-Anderson Act Model) – For a temporary period, have the federal government offer reinsurance to the pool described in the previous option but do not require the pool to build reserves. Losses from a terrorist incident above some threshold amount would be reinsured by the government through the pool. Actual claims would be initially financed by Treasury and premiums would then be assessed pro rata on the pool participants in the next year (or years). Loss sharing with taxpayers could be established to limit losses put back to the industry.

Pros

- Eliminates idle capital.
- Avoids deadweight losses from mispriced insurance.
- Could quickly be made operational and easily sunset or replaced by more permanent legislation.

Cons

- Ex post pricing makes the insurance free up front, which increases moral hazard.
- Industry (and accountants?) could have difficulty handling a large future premium - unclear how they could/would reserve for such contingencies ex ante.
- Contingent deferred premiums could impact coverage levels and premium costs, thus reducing the amount of insurance available.

F. Sell Federal Reinsurance Directly to Insurers (similar to disaster insurance proposals) – The federal government would sell federal reinsurance (either with fixed pricing or through an auction process) that would be tied to insurance company losses from terrorist attacks.

Pros

- Ensures availability of P&C insurance coverage.
- Socializes the costs.

Cons

- Requires a government bureaucracy be created to initiate and manage thousands of individual reinsurance contracts with individual carriers.
- Crowds out any possible private market for terrorist reinsurance.
- Difficult to mimic market-based pricing or risk-taking incentives, leading to potential moral hazard problems.

G. Provide Federal Reinsurance through State-Based Plans (based on FAIR Act Approach) – The FAIR Act (passed in response to riots and civil disorders of the 1960s) set up a structure whereby each state would set up a plan to assure access to insurance requirements. The state plans were reinsured by the federal government through FEMA.

Pros

- Works within the existing state regulatory structure.
- Less bureaucracy than dealing with individual insurance companies.

Cons

- The states need to each set up a plan, and the federal government needs to approve the plans.
- Reinsurance rates must be determined by the government.

Direct Government Intervention

H. Directly Underwrite and Sell Terrorism Insurance Coverage (based on a War Damages Corporation approach) – Terrorism insurance would be underwritten by a government agency and sold directly to customers by insurance companies.

Pros

- Provides certainty that terrorism risks will be covered.

Cons

- Government pricing of insurance risks.

- Potential for lack of underwriting discipline and increased government risk exposure.
- Requires a government bureaucracy.

I. Provide Direct Government Insurance for Terrorist Attacks Through a Proportional Risk-Sharing Arrangement with the Insurance Industry (based on a Federal Crop Insurance approach) –Under Federal Crop Insurance, the federal government shares in premiums and the risks on a proportional basis with private insurers. The federal government also provides back-up reinsurance based on the financial condition of insurers that participate in the program.

Pros

- Provides certainty that terrorism risks will be covered.
- Private sector involvement may improve pricing and risk management.

Cons

- Government risk sharing (if large enough) may weaken private sector incentives.
- Proportional risk sharing may weaken private sector incentives in comparison to excess loss risk sharing.
- Requires a government bureaucracy.

Other Issues in Providing Government Terrorism Insurance

- Defining a Terrorist Incident – The government (perhaps the Treasury Secretary in consultation with federal law enforcement) should have the final authority in determining if an incident was caused by terrorist activities.

- Limiting Government Claims Above a Certain Dollar Amount – In order to limit the government's liability, provisions that trigger tort reforms when losses exceed a certain threshold, e.g., $10 billion, should be put in place. These provisions would include consolidating all claims in one jurisdiction; and limiting types of damages (e.g., only money damages).

Price-Anderson Act

Purpose -- To encourage the development of the nuclear industry and to ensure prompt and equitable compensation in the event of a nuclear incident.

Coverage -- For licensed nuclear power plants indemnified by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC), the Act provides for three tiers of protection against third party "public liability arising from a nuclear incident" (covering "any legal liability" with certain exceptions):

(1) Private insurance: Each reactor must purchase the maximum private insurance commercially available (currently $200 million).
(2) Retrospective pooling: If damage from an incident exceeds $200 million, each of the 110 reactors is assessed a pro-rata share of the excess up to $83.9 million, capped at $10 million per year per reactor ($83.9x 110= $9.23 billion pool+ $200 million= $9.43 billion coverage cap to the industry). The NRC may in specified circumstances, on a case-by-case basis, postpone all or part of the annual deferred premium. NRC also may provide reinsurance or guarantee payment of deferred premiums if there is a shortfall. In that event, NRC must advance necessary funds based on a Congressional appropriation or (to the extent approved in appropriation Acts) by issuing obligations to the Treasury.
(3) Government commitment: If damage exceeds $9.43 billion, the Act contains a moral commitment from Congress to provide full and prompt compensation to the public, based on a plan the President submits.

[For contractors and suppliers indemnified by the Department of Energy, the Act provides full indemnification up to $9.43 billion without private insurance. In effect, the government self-insures against nuclear incidents from contractual activities conducted on its behalf.]

Basis of Liability -- Liability is based on state tort laws of the jurisdiction where the incident occurs. Since many states provide strict liability for ultrahazardous activities, it's possible that liability for a nuclear incident could be established without fault. For "extraordinary nuclear occurrences," the Act requires waiver of certain defenses so that claimants need not prove fault and defendants may not claim charitable or sovereign immunity. In limited situations, the Act supercedes state law with uniform rules such as a limitation on awarding punitive damages or the time in which claims may be brought.

Consolidated Jurisdiction -- Claims are consolidated in a single U.S. District Court where the incident occurs. This channels liability through one court to one source of funds, so there is no need to sue all potential defendants or allocate liability among multiple defendants.

International Coverage -- Damages for injuries suffered in other countries from incidents in the U.S. may be sought in U.S. courts under the Act. The Act cannot control liability exposure in other countries.

Sunset -- The Act sunsets provisions permitting coverage for potential licensees and new contracts. Congress renewed and amended the 1957 Act in 1966, 1969, 1975, and 1988.

Pool Re (Pool Reinsurance Co. Ltd.)

Purpose -- To create an independent, mutual reinsurance company backed by the government that provides reinsurance to member companies for property loss and business interruption due to fire and explosion from "acts of terrorism" (primarily car bombs) that the insurance and reinsurance markets would not otherwise insure. Since its inception in 1993, Pool Re has covered three major losses for a total of 600 million pounds.

Participants -- Member companies are insurers (and Lloyd's syndicates) authorized to underwrite property insurance and business interruption for risks located in England, Wales and Scotland. Currently there are about 200 members, including all of the largest insurers in the U.K. commercial insurance market.

Reinsurance Coverage -- Members are required to offer reinsurance to first line insurers in excess of the retention, which is 100,000 pounds per "head of cover" per incident or 2.5 million pounds per policy per cover per incident. "Heads of cover" include: (1) buildings and completed structures, (2) other property (including contents, engineering contractors and computers), (3) business interruption, and (4) book debts (unclear how many heads of cover there actually are). Insureds have the option of buying protection beyond the 100,000 pounds of coverage, in which case the insurer cedes the additional premium to Pool Re, which assumes the risk.

Government (Retrocession) Liability -- Under the retrocession agreement, the government becomes liable to make payments to Pool Re when Pool Re's financial resources, including a [500 million] pound loan facility, have been exhausted. Members may reinsure only with Pool Re, which agrees to reinsure each member in excess of its retention. The Reinsurance (Acts of Terrorism) Act of 1993 enabled the Secretary for Trade and Industry to enter into the retrocession agreement with Pool Re subject to the consent of the Treasury. Pool Re's only retrocessionaire is the government.

Premiums -- Pool Re is funded through "market" rate premiums set by the government in exchange for the government underwriting excess exposure to the fund. Companies pay rates depending on the locations of risks in different geographic zones -- currently 150 pounds per million pounds of coverage in metropolitan areas, and 30 pounds per million of coverage in rural areas. The retrocession agreement provides that when Pool Re's funds reach one billion pounds, a retrocession premium becomes payable to the government. If Pool Re incurs an underwriting loss (an underwriting year is closed after three years), each member must pay an additional premium equivalent to 10% of the underwriting loss subject to a maximum of 10% of the premium income it paid to Pool Re for the underwriting year in question. If Pool Re makes an underwriting profit, each member is entitled to a 10% return premium.

Certification -- According to the retrocession agreement, the Secretary of State is required to provide a certificate to the effect that an "act of terrorism" has occurred for which indemnity is claimed under a reinsurance agreement.

Dispute resolution -- The agreements provide a dispute resolution procedure in addition to the usual arbitration clause.

(12 U.S.C. 1749bbb)

Purpose -- To create statewide plans to make essential property insurance more readily available in urban areas following the 1968 riots by providing Federal reinsurance for property losses arising from "riots or civil disorders." The statutory authority terminated in 1985, but 29 states still run FAIR programs.

Role of FEMA -- The FEMA Director, in consultation with a public-private Advisory Board, establishes and carries out the FAIR program, the Federal reinsurance program (including a "National Insurance Development Fund"), and a Federal crime insurance program, described below. FEMA reports to Congress at least annually on its operations under the Act.

Reinsurance -- FEMA is authorized to offer reinsurance from the National Insurance Development Fund to each insurer or pool for property losses arising from "riots or civil disorders." Reinsurance is offered only on "standard lines" of property insurance, as defined.

Premiums -- Insurers pay FEMA reinsurance premiums, determined by FEMA in consultation with the Advisory Board, for deposit into the Fund. FEMA thereafter may adjust premiums after consulting with the Advisory Board and the NAIC. The Fund can borrow from the Treasury to meet its needs.

Reimbursement for Losses -- The Act requires states to pass legislation stating that they will reimburse FEMA for any reinsured losses up to 5% of the aggregate property insurance premiums earned in that state during the previous year, to the extent the losses exceed the amount FEMA received in reinsurance premiums.

Federal Crime Insurance -- FEMA is required to critically review the market availability in each state of burglary and robbery insurance at affordable rates. If there is a critical unavailability, FEMA must make it available at affordable rates through the facilities of the Federal government after consulting with state insurance authorities in estimating what rates are affordable.

Participation in State FAIR Plans -- Participation in a state FAIR plan is required for an insurer to qualify for Federal reinsurance. (Most states also require property insurers to join the FAIR program before getting a certificate of authority to do business.) Each insurer wishing to participate in a FAIR program must cooperate with the appropriate state insurance authority in establishing and carrying out the FAIR plan. Plans are approved and administered by state insurance authorities. Plans must be run in a way that makes essential property insurance more readily available in urban areas. Plans must include various requirements regarding property inspection, reporting of reasons for declining coverage or requiring changes in the property, etc. A potential insured can request coverage under the program after being denied coverage otherwise.

War Damage Corporation Act
56 Stat. 174 (1942)

Purpose -- To establish WDC as a subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation (RFC) to provide property owners in the U.S. with reasonable insurance protection against loss or damage from enemy attack or U.S. military resistance during WWII, since basic fire and extended coverages contained a war risk exclusion.

History -- WDC was established in 1941 as the War Insurance Corporation and renamed the WDC in 1942. It is a subsidiary of the RFC, which was established by Congress in 1940 to aid in the national defense program. The WDC program grew from the War Risk Insurance Act of 1914 (38 Stat. 711), which provided insurance for maritime vessels and was amended in 1917 in response to WWI. WDC's charter and all policies expired in 1947. WDC's assets were liquidated by 1949, and in 1957 its stock was transferred to the Secretary of the Treasury for cancellation after all suits against the WDC had been settled.

Coverage -- The Act directs the RFC to empower the WDC to use its funds to provide, through insurance, reinsurance or otherwise, reasonable protection against loss or damage to real or personal property resulting from enemy attack or U.S. military resistance, with such exceptions as WDC, with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce, may deem advisable.

RFC Funding -- The Act directs the RFC, upon the request of the Secretary of Commerce and with the President's approval, to provide funds to WDC and issue obligations sufficient to carry out the Act's purposes. The aggregate amount of funds supplied by the RTC may not exceed $1 billion.

Premiums -- WDC protection would be made available upon the payment of such premium and subject to such terms and conditions as WDC may establish with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce.

Establishment of Rates -- In view of the national interest involved, the Act required WDC to establish from time to time uniform rates for each type of property for which protection was made available. To establish a basis for such uniform rates, the Act required WDC to estimate the average risk of loss on all property of such type in the U.S.

Limitation of Protection -- Protection was available only in the U.S., its territories and possessions, and other places determined by the President to be under U.S. dominion and control, and not to property on which the Maritime Commission was authorized to provide marine war-risk insurance. WDC, with approval of the Secretary of Commerce, could suspend or restrict protection in areas in consideration of loss of control by the U.S.

Losses Sustained between Dec. 7, 1941 and the Start-Up Date -- WDC was authorized to provide compensation without requiring an insurance contract or payment of premium, adjusting the loss as if a policy were in effect.

Week in Review

White House Office of Communications, (202) 456-2777

This week the Bush Administration moved on many fronts in the global war against terrorism. The Administration froze terrorist financial assets, unveiled an aggressive new airline safety package, continued military preparations, and received key new support from the growing worldwide coalition against terrorism.

- ☑ On Monday the President signed an Executive Order that immediately freezes U.S. financial assets of terrorists and prohibits U.S. transactions with 27 different entities – including terrorist organizations and individual terrorist leaders. The Executive Order represents a strong strike against the financial foundation of the global terror network. The President also met with families of the passengers and flight crew of United Flight 93.

- ☑ On Tuesday the President met with the Prime Minister of Japan and announced important intelligence and military commitments from Japan to help in the battle against terrorism. The President also visited the FBI to thank employees for their hard work on the front lines to help bring terrorist networks to their knees.

- ☑ On Wednesday the President met at the White House with American Sikhs and Muslims. The war against terrorism is a war against evil and extremists, not against the teachings of Islam, which are the teachings of peace and good. The President also visited the CIA to thank employees for being the eyes and ears of the first war of the 21st Century.

- ☑ On Thursday the President traveled to Chicago's O'Hare Airport to unveil an aggressive new aviation safety initiative that puts in place tough new federal airport and aircraft security standards, dramatically expands the federal air marshal program, fortifies cockpits to protect pilots and flight crews, and provides federal oversight of airport security.

- ☑ Today the President signed United States-Jordan Free Trade Area Implementation Act, which implements the U.S.-Jordan agreement establishing a free trade area. The Act will increase free trade with Jordan and forge a new level of economic cooperation. The President also discussed the war against terrorism in a White House meeting with the King of Jordan.

- ☑ This weekend the President will continue to work with his national security team on America's comprehensive drive to eradicate the evil of terrorism.

Week in Review

White House Office of Communications, (202) 456-2777

This week the Bush Administration moved on many fronts in the global war against terrorism. The Administration froze terrorist financial assets, unveiled an aggressive new airline safety package, continued military preparations, and received key new support from the growing worldwide coalition against terrorism.

- ☑ On Monday the President signed an Executive Order that immediately freezes U.S. financial assets of terrorists and prohibits U.S. transactions with 27 different entities – including terrorist organizations and individual terrorist leaders. The Executive Order represents a strong strike against the financial foundation of the global terror network. The President also met with families of the passengers and flight crew of United Flight 93.

- ☑ On Tuesday the President met with the Prime Minister of Japan and announced important intelligence and military commitments from Japan to help in the battle against terrorism. The President also visited the FBI to thank employees for their hard work on the front lines to help bring terrorist networks to their knees.

- ☑ On Wednesday the President met at the White House with American Sikhs and Muslims. The war against terrorism is a war against evil and extremists, not against the teachings of Islam, which are the teachings of peace and good. The President also visited the CIA to thank employees for being the eyes and ears of the first war of the 21st Century.

- ☑ On Thursday the President traveled to Chicago's O'Hare Airport to unveil an aggressive new aviation safety initiative that puts in place tough new federal airport and aircraft security standards, dramatically expands the federal air marshal program, fortifies cockpits to protect pilots and flight crews, and provides federal oversight of airport security.

- ☑ Today the President signed United States-Jordan Free Trade Area Implementation Act, which implements the U.S.-Jordan agreement establishing a free trade area. The Act will increase free trade with Jordan and forge a new level of economic cooperation. The President also discussed the war against terrorism in a White House meeting with the King of Jordan.

- ☑ This weekend the President will continue to work with his national security team on America's comprehensive drive to eradicate the evil of terrorism.

Week in Review

White House Office of Communications, (202) 456-2777

This week the Bush Administration moved on many fronts in the global war against terrorism. The Administration froze terrorist financial assets, unveiled an aggressive new airline safety package, continued military preparations, and received key new support from the growing worldwide coalition against terrorism.

- ☑ On Monday the President signed an Executive Order that immediately freezes U.S. financial assets of terrorists and prohibits U.S. transactions with 27 different entities – including terrorist organizations and individual terrorist leaders. The Executive Order represents a strong strike against the financial foundation of the global terror network. The President also met with families of the passengers and flight crew of United Flight 93.

- ☑ On Tuesday the President met with the Prime Minister of Japan and announced important intelligence and military commitments from Japan to help in the battle against terrorism. The President also visited the FBI to thank employees for their hard work on the front lines to help bring terrorist networks to their knees.

- ☑ On Wednesday the President met at the White House with American Sikhs and Muslims. The war against terrorism is a war against evil and extremists, not against the teachings of Islam, which are the teachings of peace and good. The President also visited the CIA to thank employees for being the eyes and ears of the first war of the 21st Century.

- ☑ On Thursday the President traveled to Chicago's O'Hare Airport to unveil an aggressive new aviation safety initiative that puts in place tough new federal airport and aircraft security standards, dramatically expands the federal air marshal program, fortifies cockpits to protect pilots and flight crews, and provides federal oversight of airport security.

- ☑ Today the President signed United States-Jordan Free Trade Area Implementation Act, which implements the U.S.-Jordan agreement establishing a free trade area. The Act will increase free trade with Jordan and forge a new level of economic cooperation. The President also discussed the war against terrorism in a White House meeting with the King of Jordan.

- ☑ This weekend the President will continue to work with his national security team on America's comprehensive drive to eradicate the evil of terrorism.

Week in Review

White House Office of Communications, (202) 456-2777

This week the Bush Administration moved on many fronts in the global war against terrorism. The Administration froze terrorist financial assets, unveiled an aggressive new airline safety package, continued military preparations, and received key new support from the growing worldwide coalition against terrorism.

- ☑ On Monday the President signed an Executive Order that immediately freezes U.S. financial assets of terrorists and prohibits U.S. transactions with 27 different entities – including terrorist organizations and individual terrorist leaders. The Executive Order represents a strong strike against the financial foundation of the global terror network. The President also met with families of the passengers and flight crew of United Flight 93.

- ☑ On Tuesday the President met with the Prime Minister of Japan and announced important intelligence and military commitments from Japan to help in the battle against terrorism. The President also visited the FBI to thank employees for their hard work on the front lines to help bring terrorist networks to their knees.

- ☑ On Wednesday the President met at the White House with American Sikhs and Muslims. The war against terrorism is a war against evil and extremists, not against the teachings of Islam, which are the teachings of peace and good. The President also visited the CIA to thank employees for being the eyes and ears of the first war of the 21st Century.

- ☑ On Thursday the President traveled to Chicago's O'Hare Airport to unveil an aggressive new aviation safety initiative that puts in place tough new federal airport and aircraft security standards, dramatically expands the federal air marshal program, fortifies cockpits to protect pilots and flight crews, and provides federal oversight of airport security.

- ☑ Today the President signed United States-Jordan Free Trade Area Implementation Act, which implements the U.S.-Jordan agreement establishing a free trade area. The Act will increase free trade with Jordan and forge a new level of economic cooperation. The President also discussed the war against terrorism in a White House meeting with the King of Jordan.

- ☑ This weekend the President will continue to work with his national security team on America's comprehensive drive to eradicate the evil of terrorism.

Can I see this 236A provision? Also, can I see whatever finally emerged from the 201 debate?

Subject: LIMITED CIRCULATION: Current House Positions

As I understand it, here's where we stand in House Judiciary:

1. 5018 is out.

2. Mens rea or terrorist motive is out in favor of pared down list for Conspiracy upping, SoL, and RICO. It is still in for the alternative maximum penalties, but this only creates an option for prosecutors--charge with mens rea (life max) or not (penalty enhancement under USSG).

3. Important: section 202 (bond revocation) now creates new section 236A, which provides for detention of terrorists even without independent grounds for removal, as long as INS files charges within seven days. Conyers has signed off on this, and our judgment is to keep it in, because it gives us great political cover to counter the whole "indefinite detention" obfuscation and also it may give us some leverage for other provisions if we ditch it later.

At 3:00 Monday, a meeting about a campaign party will be held in my office. I think the general idea is to put together a big program in Austin; it may be the party that the campaign workers were unable to have last year. Toner, Jack Oliver, Mindy Tucker and Camille Wellborn are expected. Do you want to come to the meeting?

Presidential Action – Tuesday, October 2

White House Office of Communications

Today the President will meet with the House and Senate bipartisan congressional leadership to discuss a broad range of issues, including steps to win the war against terrorism, strengthen our economy, and help workers who have lost their jobs.

☑ Message: The President is grateful for the patriotic spirit of bipartisanship that members of Congress in both parties continue to demonstrate. The terrorist attacks were designed to break our nation apart – instead, they have bound our nation and our leaders together.

The President will also announce today that Ronald Reagan National Airport will re-open this Thursday, October 4.

☑ Message: Ronald Reagan National Airport stands as a beacon to freedom on the Potomac. The President has crafted strong new measures to help ensure airline and aircraft safety. On behalf of every citizen, passenger, crew member and pilot, the President wants to make America's system of airline security stronger, more aggressive and more reliable. When terrorists struck America they wanted to create an atmosphere of fear – and they have failed. America will not surrender our freedom to travel -- or our way of life.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

Presidential Action – Tuesday, October 2

White House Office of Communications

Today the President will meet with the House and Senate bipartisan congressional leadership to discuss a broad range of issues, including steps to win the war against terrorism, strengthen our economy, and help workers who have lost their jobs.

☑ Message: The President is grateful for the patriotic spirit of bipartisanship that members of Congress in both parties continue to demonstrate. The terrorist attacks were designed to break our nation apart – instead, they have bound our nation and our leaders together.

The President will also announce today that Ronald Reagan National Airport will re-open this Thursday, October 4.

☑ Message: Ronald Reagan National Airport stands as a beacon to freedom on the Potomac. The President has crafted strong new measures to help ensure airline and aircraft safety. On behalf of every citizen, passenger, crew member and pilot, the President wants to make America's system of airline security stronger, more aggressive and more reliable. When terrorists struck America they wanted to create an atmosphere of fear – and they have failed. America will not surrender our freedom to travel -- or our way of life.

Opening Ronald Reagan National Airport

Ronald Reagan National Airport (DCA) will reopen on Thursday, October 4th for commercial operations. On Thursday shuttle service to New York and Boston will resume, and flights to the other six cities will begin as soon as the new security measures are in place – which could be as early as Thursday. Resumption of flights at DCA will take place in phases over an initial two-month period and extraordinary security measures will be in place for all approved flights. The President has identified the initial two phases that will lead to a resumption of normal commercial operations, with details of subsequent stages to be announced after review of initial flight operations.

Phase I. Initial Shuttle and Hub Connections (Duration: approximately 3 weeks)

- Extraordinary security measures -- the most exacting in the nation -- in place at DCA and all connecting terminals at connecting airports (see below).
- Commercial airlines only.
- Flights to eight hub airports served by six airlines, with slot restrictions determined by the Department of Transportation. The service will include:
  - ✓ New York LaGuardia – Delta Shuttle and US Airways Shuttle
  - ✓ Boston – Delta Shuttle, US Airways Shuttle and American
  - ✓ Atlanta – Delta and US Airways
  - ✓ Pittsburgh – US Airways
  - ✓ Chicago – American and United
  - ✓ Dallas – American and Delta
  - ✓ Minneapolis – Northwest
  - ✓ Newark – Continental
- Aircraft size is limited to 156 seats or less.
- Operations at DCA only between 7a.m. and 10p.m.

Phase I will allow approximately 190 flights-per-day (24 percent of the 792 scheduled commercial flights prior to 9/11).

Phase II. Expanded Hub Connection (Duration: 30-45 days following Phase I)

- All Phase I operations and operational requirements remain in effect, with the exception that the number of flights to each location may increase to previously scheduled levels.
- Direct flights to an additional 10 cities (18 total), with locations to be determined.

If preexisting schedules were resumed, Phase II would allow approximately 450 flights-per-day (57 percent of the 792 scheduled commercial flights prior to 9/11).

Enhanced Security Measures

Security will be strengthened in numerous ways by the FAA, the Department of Defense, the Secret Service, other law enforcement agencies, the airport authorities and airlines. Many of the security measures will be visible and many will not. Examples of new security measures include:

- Implementing the Federal Air Marshals program for DCA air traffic.
- Limiting passengers carry-on baggage to one bag plus one personal item (a purse or briefcase).
- Random hand-wanding of passengers at the gate.
- Identification check and boarding pass match as passengers board aircraft.
- Departures to DCA from approved cities allowed only from pre-designated, specially secured gates
- Expanded police and canine patrols of the secure areas.
- Enhanced scrutiny of vehicles and employees that enter the air operations area.
- Flight crews dedicated to DCA only, with mandatory pre-flight screening of crews.
- Requiring straight-line flight approaches and departures, temporarily discontinuing the "river visual approach" used to mitigate noise.
- DCA will implement a public security awareness program.

Questions and Answers

Q: When will Ronald Reagan Airport (DCA) open?

The airport will open this Thursday, October 4, for commercial operations. On Thursday shuttle service to New York and Boston will resume, and flights to the other six cities will begin as soon as the new security measures are in place – which could be as early as Thursday.

Q: How were the carriers and cities chosen for Phase I? How will they be chosen for Phase II?

Phase I operations were aimed at restoring at least some service to the carriers with the largest number of flights at DCA prior to September 11. Phase II will seek to restore some service to virtually all carriers operating in DCA prior to September 11.

Q: What are the increased security measures?

Security will be strengthened in a number of ways -- many of the security measures will be visible and many will not. New security measures will include:

- Implementing the Federal Air Marshals program for DCA air traffic.
- Limiting passengers carry-on baggage to one bag plus one personal item (a purse or briefcase).
- Random hand-wanding of passengers at the gate.
- Identification check and boarding pass match as passengers board aircraft.
- Departures to DCA from approved cities allowed only from pre-designated, specially secured gates
- Expanded police and canine patrols of the secure areas.
- Enhanced scrutiny of vehicles and employees that enter the air operations area.
- Flight crews dedicated to DCA only, with mandatory pre-flight screening of crews.
- Requiring straight-line flight approaches and departures, temporarily discontinuing the "river visual approach" used to mitigate noise.
- DCA will implement a public security awareness program.

Q: Will there be a Federal Air Marshal on every flight into and out of Reagan Airport?

For purposes of security we will not discuss the numbers and deployment for the Air Marshal program. However, we recognize the importance and significance of their presence and we are committed to implementing a highly effective security program at Reagan National Airport.

Q: What about security at the destination and originating cities, will the security measures be the same?

The same heightened security measures will be the same at both the destination and originating cities.

Q: How long will Phase I last?

Phase I will be in place for about three weeks. This time will give the FAA, DOD, Secret Service, other law enforcement agencies, the airports, and airlines an opportunity to evaluate operations before moving forward.

Q: What do passengers need to know? Will they face new inconveniences?

Passengers have shown great patience during the aftermath following the September 11 tragedy and we ask for their continued patience as we put in place additional measures to make their airports, airlines and aircraft safer. Passengers will be limited to one carry-on bag and one personal item for DCA flights. Additional identification checks will be required before passengers board the aircraft. Passengers will want to get to the airport a little earlier than usual but passengers can also rest assured that they will be safer than ever before.

Q: Will airlines use the same flight approaches they have in the past? What about noise restrictions for local residents?

Different flight approaches will be used which may increase aircraft noise for some residents. Operations at DCA are temporarily being limited to between 7 a.m. and 10 p.m. to help reduce the impacts on residents.

Q: How have the circumstances changed to allow you to open Reagan airport?

The Administration wanted to take every step possible to ensure safety for passengers who use Reagan Airport. The Administration studied Reagan's special circumstances and location, worked government-wide to craft a new security plan and tough new security procedures, and now is ready to re-open the airport. Reagan Airport has many great economic benefits and is significant to the region. The Administration is excited to see people flying again in and out of Ronald Reagan Airport.

Q: Will general aviation flights be allowed at DCA?

General aviation flights will not be allowed in the initial two phases.

Q: Why not open the airport entirely?

The Administration brought America's air traffic system up in phases to ensure that every possible safety and security precaution was considered and implemented. The Administration thinks it is important to move forward in a deliberative, careful manner. We are taking the same approach here.

Presidential Action – Tuesday, October 2

White House Office of Communications

Today the President will meet with the House and Senate bipartisan congressional leadership to discuss a broad range of issues, including steps to win the war against terrorism, strengthen our economy, and help workers who have lost their jobs.

☑ Message: The President is grateful for the patriotic spirit of bipartisanship that members of Congress in both parties continue to demonstrate. The terrorist attacks were designed to break our nation apart – instead, they have bound our nation and our leaders together.

The President will also announce today that Ronald Reagan National Airport will re-open this Thursday, October 4.

☑ Message: Ronald Reagan National Airport stands as a beacon to freedom on the Potomac. The President has crafted strong new measures to help ensure airline and aircraft safety. On behalf of every citizen, passenger, crew member and pilot, the President wants to make America's system of airline security stronger, more aggressive and more reliable. When terrorists struck America they wanted to create an atmosphere of fear – and they have failed. America will not surrender our freedom to travel -- or our way of life.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

Presidential Action – Tuesday, October 2

White House Office of Communications

Today the President will meet with the House and Senate bipartisan congressional leadership to discuss a broad range of issues, including steps to win the war against terrorism, strengthen our economy, and help workers who have lost their jobs.

☑ Message: The President is grateful for the patriotic spirit of bipartisanship that members of Congress in both parties continue to demonstrate. The terrorist attacks were designed to break our nation apart – instead, they have bound our nation and our leaders together.

The President will also announce today that Ronald Reagan National Airport will re-open this Thursday, October 4.

☑ Message: Ronald Reagan National Airport stands as a beacon to freedom on the Potomac. The President has crafted strong new measures to help ensure airline and aircraft safety. On behalf of every citizen, passenger, crew member and pilot, the President wants to make America's system of airline security stronger, more aggressive and more reliable. When terrorists struck America they wanted to create an atmosphere of fear – and they have failed. America will not surrender our freedom to travel -- or our way of life.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

Presidential Action – Tuesday, October 2

White House Office of Communications

Today the President will meet with the House and Senate bipartisan congressional leadership to discuss a broad range of issues, including steps to win the war against terrorism, strengthen our economy, and help workers who have lost their jobs.

☑ Message: The President is grateful for the patriotic spirit of bipartisanship that members of Congress in both parties continue to demonstrate. The terrorist attacks were designed to break our nation apart – instead, they have bound our nation and our leaders together.

The President will also announce today that Ronald Reagan National Airport will re-open this Thursday, October 4.

☑ Message: Ronald Reagan National Airport stands as a beacon to freedom on the Potomac. The President has crafted strong new measures to help ensure airline and aircraft safety. On behalf of every citizen, passenger, crew member and pilot, the President wants to make America's system of airline security stronger, more aggressive and more reliable. When terrorists struck America they wanted to create an atmosphere of fear – and they have failed. America will not surrender our freedom to travel -- or our way of life.

Presidential Action – Tuesday, October 2

White House Office of Communications

Today the President will meet with the House and Senate bipartisan congressional leadership to discuss a broad range of issues, including steps to win the war against terrorism, strengthen our economy, and help workers who have lost their jobs.

☑ Message: The President is grateful for the patriotic spirit of bipartisanship that members of Congress in both parties continue to demonstrate. The terrorist attacks were designed to break our nation apart – instead, they have bound our nation and our leaders together.

The President will also announce today that Ronald Reagan National Airport will re-open this Thursday, October 4.

☑ Message: Ronald Reagan National Airport stands as a beacon to freedom on the Potomac. The President has crafted strong new measures to help ensure airline and aircraft safety. On behalf of every citizen, passenger, crew member and pilot, the President wants to make America's system of airline security stronger, more aggressive and more reliable. When terrorists struck America they wanted to create an atmosphere of fear – and they have failed. America will not surrender our freedom to travel -- or our way of life.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

Presidential Action – Tuesday, October 2

White House Office of Communications

Today the President will meet with the House and Senate bipartisan congressional leadership to discuss a broad range of issues, including steps to win the war against terrorism, strengthen our economy, and help workers who have lost their jobs.

☑ Message: The President is grateful for the patriotic spirit of bipartisanship that members of Congress in both parties continue to demonstrate. The terrorist attacks were designed to break our nation apart – instead, they have bound our nation and our leaders together.

The President will also announce today that Ronald Reagan National Airport will re-open this Thursday, October 4.

☑ Message: Ronald Reagan National Airport stands as a beacon to freedom on the Potomac. The President has crafted strong new measures to help ensure airline and aircraft safety. On behalf of every citizen, passenger, crew member and pilot, the President wants to make America's system of airline security stronger, more aggressive and more reliable. When terrorists struck America they wanted to create an atmosphere of fear – and they have failed. America will not surrender our freedom to travel -- or our way of life.

Presidential Action – Tuesday, October 2

White House Office of Communications

Today the President will meet with the House and Senate bipartisan congressional leadership to discuss a broad range of issues, including steps to win the war against terrorism, strengthen our economy, and help workers who have lost their jobs.

☑ Message: The President is grateful for the patriotic spirit of bipartisanship that members of Congress in both parties continue to demonstrate. The terrorist attacks were designed to break our nation apart – instead, they have bound our nation and our leaders together.

The President will also announce today that Ronald Reagan National Airport will re-open this Thursday, October 4.

☑ Message: Ronald Reagan National Airport stands as a beacon to freedom on the Potomac. The President has crafted strong new measures to help ensure airline and aircraft safety. On behalf of every citizen, passenger, crew member and pilot, the President wants to make America's system of airline security stronger, more aggressive and more reliable. When terrorists struck America they wanted to create an atmosphere of fear – and they have failed. America will not surrender our freedom to travel -- or our way of life.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

Presidential Action – Tuesday, October 2

White House Office of Communications

Today the President will meet with the House and Senate bipartisan congressional leadership to discuss a broad range of issues, including steps to win the war against terrorism, strengthen our economy, and help workers who have lost their jobs.

☑ Message: The President is grateful for the patriotic spirit of bipartisanship that members of Congress in both parties continue to demonstrate. The terrorist attacks were designed to break our nation apart – instead, they have bound our nation and our leaders together.

The President will also announce today that Ronald Reagan National Airport will re-open this Thursday, October 4.

☑ Message: Ronald Reagan National Airport stands as a beacon to freedom on the Potomac. The President has crafted strong new measures to help ensure airline and aircraft safety. On behalf of every citizen, passenger, crew member and pilot, the President wants to make America's system of airline security stronger, more aggressive and more reliable. When terrorists struck America they wanted to create an atmosphere of fear – and they have failed. America will not surrender our freedom to travel -- or our way of life.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

Presidential Action – Tuesday, October 2

White House Office of Communications

Today the President will meet with the House and Senate bipartisan congressional leadership to discuss a broad range of issues, including steps to win the war against terrorism, strengthen our economy, and help workers who have lost their jobs.

☑ Message: The President is grateful for the patriotic spirit of bipartisanship that members of Congress in both parties continue to demonstrate. The terrorist attacks were designed to break our nation apart – instead, they have bound our nation and our leaders together.

The President will also announce today that Ronald Reagan National Airport will re-open this Thursday, October 4.

☑ Message: Ronald Reagan National Airport stands as a beacon to freedom on the Potomac. The President has crafted strong new measures to help ensure airline and aircraft safety. On behalf of every citizen, passenger, crew member and pilot, the President wants to make America's system of airline security stronger, more aggressive and more reliable. When terrorists struck America they wanted to create an atmosphere of fear – and they have failed. America will not surrender our freedom to travel -- or our way of life.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

Presidential Action – Tuesday, October 2

White House Office of Communications

Today the President will meet with the House and Senate bipartisan congressional leadership to discuss a broad range of issues, including steps to win the war against terrorism, strengthen our economy, and help workers who have lost their jobs.

☑ Message: The President is grateful for the patriotic spirit of bipartisanship that members of Congress in both parties continue to demonstrate. The terrorist attacks were designed to break our nation apart – instead, they have bound our nation and our leaders together.

The President will also announce today that Ronald Reagan National Airport will re-open this Thursday, October 4.

☑ Message: Ronald Reagan National Airport stands as a beacon to freedom on the Potomac. The President has crafted strong new measures to help ensure airline and aircraft safety. On behalf of every citizen, passenger, crew member and pilot, the President wants to make America's system of airline security stronger, more aggressive and more reliable. When terrorists struck America they wanted to create an atmosphere of fear – and they have failed. America will not surrender our freedom to travel -- or our way of life.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

Presidential Action – Tuesday, October 2

White House Office of Communications

Today the President will meet with the House and Senate bipartisan congressional leadership to discuss a broad range of issues, including steps to win the war against terrorism, strengthen our economy, and help workers who have lost their jobs.

☑ Message: The President is grateful for the patriotic spirit of bipartisanship that members of Congress in both parties continue to demonstrate. The terrorist attacks were designed to break our nation apart – instead, they have bound our nation and our leaders together.

The President will also announce today that Ronald Reagan National Airport will re-open this Thursday, October 4.

☑ Message: Ronald Reagan National Airport stands as a beacon to freedom on the Potomac. The President has crafted strong new measures to help ensure airline and aircraft safety. On behalf of every citizen, passenger, crew member and pilot, the President wants to make America's system of airline security stronger, more aggressive and more reliable. When terrorists struck America they wanted to create an atmosphere of fear – and they have failed. America will not surrender our freedom to travel -- or our way of life.

Presidential Action – Tuesday, October 2

White House Office of Communications

Today the President will meet with the House and Senate bipartisan congressional leadership to discuss a broad range of issues, including steps to win the war against terrorism, strengthen our economy, and help workers who have lost their jobs.

☑ Message: The President is grateful for the patriotic spirit of bipartisanship that members of Congress in both parties continue to demonstrate. The terrorist attacks were designed to break our nation apart – instead, they have bound our nation and our leaders together.

The President will also announce today that Ronald Reagan National Airport will re-open this Thursday, October 4.

☑ Message: Ronald Reagan National Airport stands as a beacon to freedom on the Potomac. The President has crafted strong new measures to help ensure airline and aircraft safety. On behalf of every citizen, passenger, crew member and pilot, the President wants to make America's system of airline security stronger, more aggressive and more reliable. When terrorists struck America they wanted to create an atmosphere of fear – and they have failed. America will not surrender our freedom to travel -- or our way of life.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

Presidential Action – Tuesday, October 2

White House Office of Communications

Today the President will meet with the House and Senate bipartisan congressional leadership to discuss a broad range of issues, including steps to win the war against terrorism, strengthen our economy, and help workers who have lost their jobs.

☑ Message: The President is grateful for the patriotic spirit of bipartisanship that members of Congress in both parties continue to demonstrate. The terrorist attacks were designed to break our nation apart – instead, they have bound our nation and our leaders together.

The President will also announce today that Ronald Reagan National Airport will re-open this Thursday, October 4.

☑ Message: Ronald Reagan National Airport stands as a beacon to freedom on the Potomac. The President has crafted strong new measures to help ensure airline and aircraft safety. On behalf of every citizen, passenger, crew member and pilot, the President wants to make America's system of airline security stronger, more aggressive and more reliable. When terrorists struck America they wanted to create an atmosphere of fear – and they have failed. America will not surrender our freedom to travel -- or our way of life.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

Opening Ronald Reagan National Airport

Ronald Reagan National Airport (DCA) will reopen on Thursday, October 4th for commercial operations. On Thursday shuttle service to New York and Boston will resume, and flights to the other six cities will begin as soon as the new security measures are in place – which could be as early as Thursday. Resumption of flights at DCA will take place in phases over an initial two-month period and extraordinary security measures will be in place for all approved flights. The President has identified the initial two phases that will lead to a resumption of normal commercial operations, with details of subsequent stages to be announced after review of initial flight operations.

Phase I. Initial Shuttle and Hub Connections (Duration: approximately 3 weeks)

- Extraordinary security measures -- the most exacting in the nation -- in place at DCA and all connecting terminals at connecting airports (see below).
- Commercial airlines only.
- Flights to eight hub airports served by six airlines, with slot restrictions determined by the Department of Transportation. The service will include:
  - ✓ New York LaGuardia – Delta Shuttle and US Airways Shuttle
  - ✓ Boston – Delta Shuttle, US Airways Shuttle and American
  - ✓ Atlanta – Delta and US Airways
  - ✓ Pittsburgh – US Airways
  - ✓ Chicago – American and United
  - ✓ Dallas – American and Delta
  - ✓ Minneapolis – Northwest
  - ✓ Newark – Continental
- Aircraft size is limited to 156 seats or less.
- Operations at DCA only between 7a.m. and 10p.m.

Phase I will allow approximately 190 flights-per-day (24 percent of the 792 scheduled commercial flights prior to 9/11).

Phase II. Expanded Hub Connection (Duration: 30-45 days following Phase I)

- All Phase I operations and operational requirements remain in effect, with the exception that the number of flights to each location may increase to previously scheduled levels.
- Direct flights to an additional 10 cities (18 total), with locations to be determined.

If preexisting schedules were resumed, Phase II would allow approximately 450 flights-per-day (57 percent of the 792 scheduled commercial flights prior to 9/11).

Enhanced Security Measures

Security will be strengthened in numerous ways by the FAA, the Department of Defense, the Secret Service, other law enforcement agencies, the airport authorities and airlines. Many of the security measures will be visible and many will not. Examples of new security measures include:

- Implementing the Federal Air Marshals program for DCA air traffic.
- Limiting passengers carry-on baggage to one bag plus one personal item (a purse or briefcase).
- Random hand-wanding of passengers at the gate.
- Identification check and boarding pass match as passengers board aircraft.
- Departures to DCA from approved cities allowed only from pre-designated, specially secured gates
- Expanded police and canine patrols of the secure areas.
- Enhanced scrutiny of vehicles and employees that enter the air operations area.
- Flight crews dedicated to DCA only, with mandatory pre-flight screening of crews.
- Requiring straight-line flight approaches and departures, temporarily discontinuing the "river visual approach" used to mitigate noise.
- DCA will implement a public security awareness program.

Questions and Answers

Q: When will Ronald Reagan Airport (DCA) open?

The airport will open this Thursday, October 4, for commercial operations. On Thursday shuttle service to New York and Boston will resume, and flights to the other six cities will begin as soon as the new security measures are in place – which could be as early as Thursday.

Q: How were the carriers and cities chosen for Phase I? How will they be chosen for Phase II?

Phase I operations were aimed at restoring at least some service to the carriers with the largest number of flights at DCA prior to September 11. Phase II will seek to restore some service to virtually all carriers operating in DCA prior to September 11.

Q: What are the increased security measures?

Security will be strengthened in a number of ways -- many of the security measures will be visible and many will not. New security measures will include:

- Implementing the Federal Air Marshals program for DCA air traffic.
- Limiting passengers carry-on baggage to one bag plus one personal item (a purse or briefcase).
- Random hand-wanding of passengers at the gate.
- Identification check and boarding pass match as passengers board aircraft.
- Departures to DCA from approved cities allowed only from pre-designated, specially secured gates
- Expanded police and canine patrols of the secure areas.
- Enhanced scrutiny of vehicles and employees that enter the air operations area.
- Flight crews dedicated to DCA only, with mandatory pre-flight screening of crews.
- Requiring straight-line flight approaches and departures, temporarily discontinuing the "river visual approach" used to mitigate noise.
- DCA will implement a public security awareness program.

Q: Will there be a Federal Air Marshal on every flight into and out of Reagan Airport?

For purposes of security we will not discuss the numbers and deployment for the Air Marshal program. However, we recognize the importance and significance of their presence and we are committed to implementing a highly effective security program at Reagan National Airport.

Q: What about security at the destination and originating cities, will the security measures be the same?

The same heightened security measures will be the same at both the destination and originating cities.

Q: How long will Phase I last?

Phase I will be in place for about three weeks. This time will give the FAA, DOD, Secret Service, other law enforcement agencies, the airports, and airlines an opportunity to evaluate operations before moving forward.

Q: What do passengers need to know? Will they face new inconveniences?

Passengers have shown great patience during the aftermath following the September 11 tragedy and we ask for their continued patience as we put in place additional measures to make their airports, airlines and aircraft safer. Passengers will be limited to one carry-on bag and one personal item for DCA flights. Additional identification checks will be required before passengers board the aircraft. Passengers will want to get to the airport a little earlier than usual but passengers can also rest assured that they will be safer than ever before.

Q: Will airlines use the same flight approaches they have in the past? What about noise restrictions for local residents?

Different flight approaches will be used which may increase aircraft noise for some residents. Operations at DCA are temporarily being limited to between 7 a.m. and 10 p.m. to help reduce the impacts on residents.

Q: How have the circumstances changed to allow you to open Reagan airport?

The Administration wanted to take every step possible to ensure safety for passengers who use Reagan Airport. The Administration studied Reagan's special circumstances and location, worked government-wide to craft a new security plan and tough new security procedures, and now is ready to re-open the airport. Reagan Airport has many great economic benefits and is significant to the region. The Administration is excited to see people flying again in and out of Ronald Reagan Airport.

Q: Will general aviation flights be allowed at DCA?

General aviation flights will not be allowed in the initial two phases.

Q: Why not open the airport entirely?

The Administration brought America's air traffic system up in phases to ensure that every possible safety and security precaution was considered and implemented. The Administration thinks it is important to move forward in a deliberative, careful manner. We are taking the same approach here.

Opening Ronald Reagan National Airport

Ronald Reagan National Airport (DCA) will reopen on Thursday, October 4th for commercial operations. On Thursday shuttle service to New York and Boston will resume, and flights to the other six cities will begin as soon as the new security measures are in place – which could be as early as Thursday. Resumption of flights at DCA will take place in phases over an initial two-month period and extraordinary security measures will be in place for all approved flights. The President has identified the initial two phases that will lead to a resumption of normal commercial operations, with details of subsequent stages to be announced after review of initial flight operations.

Phase I. Initial Shuttle and Hub Connections (Duration: approximately 3 weeks)

- Extraordinary security measures -- the most exacting in the nation -- in place at DCA and all connecting terminals at connecting airports (see below).
- Commercial airlines only.
- Flights to eight hub airports served by six airlines, with slot restrictions determined by the Department of Transportation. The service will include:
  - ✓ New York LaGuardia – Delta Shuttle and US Airways Shuttle
  - ✓ Boston – Delta Shuttle, US Airways Shuttle and American
  - ✓ Atlanta – Delta and US Airways
  - ✓ Pittsburgh – US Airways
  - ✓ Chicago – American and United
  - ✓ Dallas – American and Delta
  - ✓ Minneapolis – Northwest
  - ✓ Newark – Continental
- Aircraft size is limited to 156 seats or less.
- Operations at DCA only between 7a.m. and 10p.m.

Phase I will allow approximately 190 flights-per-day (24 percent of the 792 scheduled commercial flights prior to 9/11).

Phase II. Expanded Hub Connection (Duration: 30-45 days following Phase I)

- All Phase I operations and operational requirements remain in effect, with the exception that the number of flights to each location may increase to previously scheduled levels.
- Direct flights to an additional 10 cities (18 total), with locations to be determined.

If preexisting schedules were resumed, Phase II would allow approximately 450 flights-per-day (57 percent of the 792 scheduled commercial flights prior to 9/11).

Enhanced Security Measures

Security will be strengthened in numerous ways by the FAA, the Department of Defense, the Secret Service, other law enforcement agencies, the airport authorities and airlines. Many of the security measures will be visible and many will not. Examples of new security measures include:

- Implementing the Federal Air Marshals program for DCA air traffic.
- Limiting passengers carry-on baggage to one bag plus one personal item (a purse or briefcase).
- Random hand-wanding of passengers at the gate.
- Identification check and boarding pass match as passengers board aircraft.
- Departures to DCA from approved cities allowed only from pre-designated, specially secured gates
- Expanded police and canine patrols of the secure areas.
- Enhanced scrutiny of vehicles and employees that enter the air operations area.
- Flight crews dedicated to DCA only, with mandatory pre-flight screening of crews.
- Requiring straight-line flight approaches and departures, temporarily discontinuing the "river visual approach" used to mitigate noise.
- DCA will implement a public security awareness program.

Questions and Answers

Q: When will Ronald Reagan Airport (DCA) open?

The airport will open this Thursday, October 4, for commercial operations. On Thursday shuttle service to New York and Boston will resume, and flights to the other six cities will begin as soon as the new security measures are in place – which could be as early as Thursday.

Q: How were the carriers and cities chosen for Phase I? How will they be chosen for Phase II?

Phase I operations were aimed at restoring at least some service to the carriers with the largest number of flights at DCA prior to September 11. Phase II will seek to restore some service to virtually all carriers operating in DCA prior to September 11.

Q: What are the increased security measures?

Security will be strengthened in a number of ways -- many of the security measures will be visible and many will not. New security measures will include:

- Implementing the Federal Air Marshals program for DCA air traffic.
- Limiting passengers carry-on baggage to one bag plus one personal item (a purse or briefcase).
- Random hand-wanding of passengers at the gate.
- Identification check and boarding pass match as passengers board aircraft.
- Departures to DCA from approved cities allowed only from pre-designated, specially secured gates
- Expanded police and canine patrols of the secure areas.
- Enhanced scrutiny of vehicles and employees that enter the air operations area.
- Flight crews dedicated to DCA only, with mandatory pre-flight screening of crews.
- Requiring straight-line flight approaches and departures, temporarily discontinuing the "river visual approach" used to mitigate noise.
- DCA will implement a public security awareness program.

Q: Will there be a Federal Air Marshal on every flight into and out of Reagan Airport?

For purposes of security we will not discuss the numbers and deployment for the Air Marshal program. However, we recognize the importance and significance of their presence and we are committed to implementing a highly effective security program at Reagan National Airport.

Q: What about security at the destination and originating cities, will the security measures be the same?

The same heightened security measures will be the same at both the destination and originating cities.

Q: How long will Phase I last?

Phase I will be in place for about three weeks. This time will give the FAA, DOD, Secret Service, other law enforcement agencies, the airports, and airlines an opportunity to evaluate operations before moving forward.

Q: What do passengers need to know? Will they face new inconveniences?

Passengers have shown great patience during the aftermath following the September 11 tragedy and we ask for their continued patience as we put in place additional measures to make their airports, airlines and aircraft safer. Passengers will be limited to one carry-on bag and one personal item for DCA flights. Additional identification checks will be required before passengers board the aircraft. Passengers will want to get to the airport a little earlier than usual but passengers can also rest assured that they will be safer than ever before.

Q: Will airlines use the same flight approaches they have in the past? What about noise restrictions for local residents?

Different flight approaches will be used which may increase aircraft noise for some residents. Operations at DCA are temporarily being limited to between 7 a.m. and 10 p.m. to help reduce the impacts on residents.

Q: How have the circumstances changed to allow you to open Reagan airport?

The Administration wanted to take every step possible to ensure safety for passengers who use Reagan Airport. The Administration studied Reagan's special circumstances and location, worked government-wide to craft a new security plan and tough new security procedures, and now is ready to re-open the airport. Reagan Airport has many great economic benefits and is significant to the region. The Administration is excited to see people flying again in and out of Ronald Reagan Airport.

Q: Will general aviation flights be allowed at DCA?

General aviation flights will not be allowed in the initial two phases.

Q: Why not open the airport entirely?

The Administration brought America's air traffic system up in phases to ensure that every possible safety and security precaution was considered and implemented. The Administration thinks it is important to move forward in a deliberative, careful manner. We are taking the same approach here.

Opening Ronald Reagan National Airport

Ronald Reagan National Airport (DCA) will reopen on Thursday, October 4th for commercial operations. On Thursday shuttle service to New York and Boston will resume, and flights to the other six cities will begin as soon as the new security measures are in place – which could be as early as Thursday. Resumption of flights at DCA will take place in phases over an initial two-month period and extraordinary security measures will be in place for all approved flights. The President has identified the initial two phases that will lead to a resumption of normal commercial operations, with details of subsequent stages to be announced after review of initial flight operations.

Phase I. Initial Shuttle and Hub Connections (Duration: approximately 3 weeks)

- Extraordinary security measures -- the most exacting in the nation -- in place at DCA and all connecting terminals at connecting airports (see below).
- Commercial airlines only.
- Flights to eight hub airports served by six airlines, with slot restrictions determined by the Department of Transportation. The service will include:
  - ✓ New York LaGuardia – Delta Shuttle and US Airways Shuttle
  - ✓ Boston – Delta Shuttle, US Airways Shuttle and American
  - ✓ Atlanta – Delta and US Airways
  - ✓ Pittsburgh – US Airways
  - ✓ Chicago – American and United
  - ✓ Dallas – American and Delta
  - ✓ Minneapolis – Northwest
  - ✓ Newark – Continental
- Aircraft size is limited to 156 seats or less.
- Operations at DCA only between 7a.m. and 10p.m.

Phase I will allow approximately 190 flights-per-day (24 percent of the 792 scheduled commercial flights prior to 9/11).

Phase II. Expanded Hub Connection (Duration: 30-45 days following Phase I)

- All Phase I operations and operational requirements remain in effect, with the exception that the number of flights to each location may increase to previously scheduled levels.
- Direct flights to an additional 10 cities (18 total), with locations to be determined.

If preexisting schedules were resumed, Phase II would allow approximately 450 flights-per-day (57 percent of the 792 scheduled commercial flights prior to 9/11).

Enhanced Security Measures

Security will be strengthened in numerous ways by the FAA, the Department of Defense, the Secret Service, other law enforcement agencies, the airport authorities and airlines. Many of the security measures will be visible and many will not. Examples of new security measures include:

- Implementing the Federal Air Marshals program for DCA air traffic.
- Limiting passengers carry-on baggage to one bag plus one personal item (a purse or briefcase).
- Random hand-wanding of passengers at the gate.
- Identification check and boarding pass match as passengers board aircraft.
- Departures to DCA from approved cities allowed only from pre-designated, specially secured gates
- Expanded police and canine patrols of the secure areas.
- Enhanced scrutiny of vehicles and employees that enter the air operations area.
- Flight crews dedicated to DCA only, with mandatory pre-flight screening of crews.
- Requiring straight-line flight approaches and departures, temporarily discontinuing the "river visual approach" used to mitigate noise.
- DCA will implement a public security awareness program.

Questions and Answers

Q: When will Ronald Reagan Airport (DCA) open?

The airport will open this Thursday, October 4, for commercial operations. On Thursday shuttle service to New York and Boston will resume, and flights to the other six cities will begin as soon as the new security measures are in place – which could be as early as Thursday.

Q: How were the carriers and cities chosen for Phase I? How will they be chosen for Phase II?

Phase I operations were aimed at restoring at least some service to the carriers with the largest number of flights at DCA prior to September 11. Phase II will seek to restore some service to virtually all carriers operating in DCA prior to September 11.

Q: What are the increased security measures?

Security will be strengthened in a number of ways -- many of the security measures will be visible and many will not. New security measures will include:

- Implementing the Federal Air Marshals program for DCA air traffic.
- Limiting passengers carry-on baggage to one bag plus one personal item (a purse or briefcase).
- Random hand-wanding of passengers at the gate.
- Identification check and boarding pass match as passengers board aircraft.
- Departures to DCA from approved cities allowed only from pre-designated, specially secured gates
- Expanded police and canine patrols of the secure areas.
- Enhanced scrutiny of vehicles and employees that enter the air operations area.
- Flight crews dedicated to DCA only, with mandatory pre-flight screening of crews.
- Requiring straight-line flight approaches and departures, temporarily discontinuing the "river visual approach" used to mitigate noise.
- DCA will implement a public security awareness program.

Q: Will there be a Federal Air Marshal on every flight into and out of Reagan Airport?

For purposes of security we will not discuss the numbers and deployment for the Air Marshal program. However, we recognize the importance and significance of their presence and we are committed to implementing a highly effective security program at Reagan National Airport.

Q: What about security at the destination and originating cities, will the security measures be the same?

The same heightened security measures will be the same at both the destination and originating cities.

Q: How long will Phase I last?

Phase I will be in place for about three weeks. This time will give the FAA, DOD, Secret Service, other law enforcement agencies, the airports, and airlines an opportunity to evaluate operations before moving forward.

Q: What do passengers need to know? Will they face new inconveniences?

Passengers have shown great patience during the aftermath following the September 11 tragedy and we ask for their continued patience as we put in place additional measures to make their airports, airlines and aircraft safer. Passengers will be limited to one carry-on bag and one personal item for DCA flights. Additional identification checks will be required before passengers board the aircraft. Passengers will want to get to the airport a little earlier than usual but passengers can also rest assured that they will be safer than ever before.

Q: Will airlines use the same flight approaches they have in the past? What about noise restrictions for local residents?

Different flight approaches will be used which may increase aircraft noise for some residents. Operations at DCA are temporarily being limited to between 7 a.m. and 10 p.m. to help reduce the impacts on residents.

Q: How have the circumstances changed to allow you to open Reagan airport?

The Administration wanted to take every step possible to ensure safety for passengers who use Reagan Airport. The Administration studied Reagan's special circumstances and location, worked government-wide to craft a new security plan and tough new security procedures, and now is ready to re-open the airport. Reagan Airport has many great economic benefits and is significant to the region. The Administration is excited to see people flying again in and out of Ronald Reagan Airport.

Q: Will general aviation flights be allowed at DCA?

General aviation flights will not be allowed in the initial two phases.

Q: Why not open the airport entirely?

The Administration brought America's air traffic system up in phases to ensure that every possible safety and security precaution was considered and implemented. The Administration thinks it is important to move forward in a deliberative, careful manner. We are taking the same approach here.

Opening Ronald Reagan National Airport

Ronald Reagan National Airport (DCA) will reopen on Thursday, October 4th for commercial operations. On Thursday shuttle service to New York and Boston will resume, and flights to the other six cities will begin as soon as the new security measures are in place – which could be as early as Thursday. Resumption of flights at DCA will take place in phases over an initial two-month period and extraordinary security measures will be in place for all approved flights. The President has identified the initial two phases that will lead to a resumption of normal commercial operations, with details of subsequent stages to be announced after review of initial flight operations.

Phase I. Initial Shuttle and Hub Connections (Duration: approximately 3 weeks)

- Extraordinary security measures -- the most exacting in the nation -- in place at DCA and all connecting terminals at connecting airports (see below).
- Commercial airlines only.
- Flights to eight hub airports served by six airlines, with slot restrictions determined by the Department of Transportation. The service will include:
  - ✓ New York LaGuardia – Delta Shuttle and US Airways Shuttle
  - ✓ Boston – Delta Shuttle, US Airways Shuttle and American
  - ✓ Atlanta – Delta and US Airways
  - ✓ Pittsburgh – US Airways
  - ✓ Chicago – American and United
  - ✓ Dallas – American and Delta
  - ✓ Minneapolis – Northwest
  - ✓ Newark – Continental
- Aircraft size is limited to 156 seats or less.
- Operations at DCA only between 7a.m. and 10p.m.

Phase I will allow approximately 190 flights-per-day (24 percent of the 792 scheduled commercial flights prior to 9/11).

Phase II. Expanded Hub Connection (Duration: 30-45 days following Phase I)

- All Phase I operations and operational requirements remain in effect, with the exception that the number of flights to each location may increase to previously scheduled levels.
- Direct flights to an additional 10 cities (18 total), with locations to be determined.

If preexisting schedules were resumed, Phase II would allow approximately 450 flights-per-day (57 percent of the 792 scheduled commercial flights prior to 9/11).

Enhanced Security Measures

Security will be strengthened in numerous ways by the FAA, the Department of Defense, the Secret Service, other law enforcement agencies, the airport authorities and airlines. Many of the security measures will be visible and many will not. Examples of new security measures include:

- Implementing the Federal Air Marshals program for DCA air traffic.
- Limiting passengers carry-on baggage to one bag plus one personal item (a purse or briefcase).
- Random hand-wanding of passengers at the gate.
- Identification check and boarding pass match as passengers board aircraft.
- Departures to DCA from approved cities allowed only from pre-designated, specially secured gates
- Expanded police and canine patrols of the secure areas.
- Enhanced scrutiny of vehicles and employees that enter the air operations area.
- Flight crews dedicated to DCA only, with mandatory pre-flight screening of crews.
- Requiring straight-line flight approaches and departures, temporarily discontinuing the "river visual approach" used to mitigate noise.
- DCA will implement a public security awareness program.

Questions and Answers

Q: When will Ronald Reagan Airport (DCA) open?

The airport will open this Thursday, October 4, for commercial operations. On Thursday shuttle service to New York and Boston will resume, and flights to the other six cities will begin as soon as the new security measures are in place – which could be as early as Thursday.

Q: How were the carriers and cities chosen for Phase I? How will they be chosen for Phase II?

Phase I operations were aimed at restoring at least some service to the carriers with the largest number of flights at DCA prior to September 11. Phase II will seek to restore some service to virtually all carriers operating in DCA prior to September 11.

Q: What are the increased security measures?

Security will be strengthened in a number of ways -- many of the security measures will be visible and many will not. New security measures will include:

- Implementing the Federal Air Marshals program for DCA air traffic.
- Limiting passengers carry-on baggage to one bag plus one personal item (a purse or briefcase).
- Random hand-wanding of passengers at the gate.
- Identification check and boarding pass match as passengers board aircraft.
- Departures to DCA from approved cities allowed only from pre-designated, specially secured gates
- Expanded police and canine patrols of the secure areas.
- Enhanced scrutiny of vehicles and employees that enter the air operations area.
- Flight crews dedicated to DCA only, with mandatory pre-flight screening of crews.
- Requiring straight-line flight approaches and departures, temporarily discontinuing the "river visual approach" used to mitigate noise.
- DCA will implement a public security awareness program.

Q: Will there be a Federal Air Marshal on every flight into and out of Reagan Airport?

For purposes of security we will not discuss the numbers and deployment for the Air Marshal program. However, we recognize the importance and significance of their presence and we are committed to implementing a highly effective security program at Reagan National Airport.

Q: What about security at the destination and originating cities, will the security measures be the same?

The same heightened security measures will be the same at both the destination and originating cities.

Q: How long will Phase I last?

Phase I will be in place for about three weeks. This time will give the FAA, DOD, Secret Service, other law enforcement agencies, the airports, and airlines an opportunity to evaluate operations before moving forward.

Q: What do passengers need to know? Will they face new inconveniences?

Passengers have shown great patience during the aftermath following the September 11 tragedy and we ask for their continued patience as we put in place additional measures to make their airports, airlines and aircraft safer. Passengers will be limited to one carry-on bag and one personal item for DCA flights. Additional identification checks will be required before passengers board the aircraft. Passengers will want to get to the airport a little earlier than usual but passengers can also rest assured that they will be safer than ever before.

Q: Will airlines use the same flight approaches they have in the past? What about noise restrictions for local residents?

Different flight approaches will be used which may increase aircraft noise for some residents. Operations at DCA are temporarily being limited to between 7 a.m. and 10 p.m. to help reduce the impacts on residents.

Q: How have the circumstances changed to allow you to open Reagan airport?

The Administration wanted to take every step possible to ensure safety for passengers who use Reagan Airport. The Administration studied Reagan's special circumstances and location, worked government-wide to craft a new security plan and tough new security procedures, and now is ready to re-open the airport. Reagan Airport has many great economic benefits and is significant to the region. The Administration is excited to see people flying again in and out of Ronald Reagan Airport.

Q: Will general aviation flights be allowed at DCA?

General aviation flights will not be allowed in the initial two phases.

Q: Why not open the airport entirely?

The Administration brought America's air traffic system up in phases to ensure that every possible safety and security precaution was considered and implemented. The Administration thinks it is important to move forward in a deliberative, careful manner. We are taking the same approach here.

Opening Ronald Reagan National Airport

Ronald Reagan National Airport (DCA) will reopen on Thursday, October 4th for commercial operations. On Thursday shuttle service to New York and Boston will resume, and flights to the other six cities will begin as soon as the new security measures are in place – which could be as early as Thursday. Resumption of flights at DCA will take place in phases over an initial two-month period and extraordinary security measures will be in place for all approved flights. The President has identified the initial two phases that will lead to a resumption of normal commercial operations, with details of subsequent stages to be announced after review of initial flight operations.

Phase I. Initial Shuttle and Hub Connections (Duration: approximately 3 weeks)

- Extraordinary security measures -- the most exacting in the nation -- in place at DCA and all connecting terminals at connecting airports (see below).
- Commercial airlines only.
- Flights to eight hub airports served by six airlines, with slot restrictions determined by the Department of Transportation. The service will include:
  - ✓ New York LaGuardia – Delta Shuttle and US Airways Shuttle
  - ✓ Boston – Delta Shuttle, US Airways Shuttle and American
  - ✓ Atlanta – Delta and US Airways
  - ✓ Pittsburgh – US Airways
  - ✓ Chicago – American and United
  - ✓ Dallas – American and Delta
  - ✓ Minneapolis – Northwest
  - ✓ Newark – Continental
- Aircraft size is limited to 156 seats or less.
- Operations at DCA only between 7a.m. and 10p.m.

Phase I will allow approximately 190 flights-per-day (24 percent of the 792 scheduled commercial flights prior to 9/11).

Phase II. Expanded Hub Connection (Duration: 30-45 days following Phase I)

- All Phase I operations and operational requirements remain in effect, with the exception that the number of flights to each location may increase to previously scheduled levels.
- Direct flights to an additional 10 cities (18 total), with locations to be determined.

If preexisting schedules were resumed, Phase II would allow approximately 450 flights-per-day (57 percent of the 792 scheduled commercial flights prior to 9/11).

Enhanced Security Measures

Security will be strengthened in numerous ways by the FAA, the Department of Defense, the Secret Service, other law enforcement agencies, the airport authorities and airlines. Many of the security measures will be visible and many will not. Examples of new security measures include:

- Implementing the Federal Air Marshals program for DCA air traffic.
- Limiting passengers carry-on baggage to one bag plus one personal item (a purse or briefcase).
- Random hand-wanding of passengers at the gate.
- Identification check and boarding pass match as passengers board aircraft.
- Departures to DCA from approved cities allowed only from pre-designated, specially secured gates
- Expanded police and canine patrols of the secure areas.
- Enhanced scrutiny of vehicles and employees that enter the air operations area.
- Flight crews dedicated to DCA only, with mandatory pre-flight screening of crews.
- Requiring straight-line flight approaches and departures, temporarily discontinuing the "river visual approach" used to mitigate noise.
- DCA will implement a public security awareness program.

Questions and Answers

Q: When will Ronald Reagan Airport (DCA) open?

The airport will open this Thursday, October 4, for commercial operations. On Thursday shuttle service to New York and Boston will resume, and flights to the other six cities will begin as soon as the new security measures are in place – which could be as early as Thursday.

Q: How were the carriers and cities chosen for Phase I? How will they be chosen for Phase II?

Phase I operations were aimed at restoring at least some service to the carriers with the largest number of flights at DCA prior to September 11. Phase II will seek to restore some service to virtually all carriers operating in DCA prior to September 11.

Q: What are the increased security measures?

Security will be strengthened in a number of ways -- many of the security measures will be visible and many will not. New security measures will include:

- Implementing the Federal Air Marshals program for DCA air traffic.
- Limiting passengers carry-on baggage to one bag plus one personal item (a purse or briefcase).
- Random hand-wanding of passengers at the gate.
- Identification check and boarding pass match as passengers board aircraft.
- Departures to DCA from approved cities allowed only from pre-designated, specially secured gates
- Expanded police and canine patrols of the secure areas.
- Enhanced scrutiny of vehicles and employees that enter the air operations area.
- Flight crews dedicated to DCA only, with mandatory pre-flight screening of crews.
- Requiring straight-line flight approaches and departures, temporarily discontinuing the "river visual approach" used to mitigate noise.
- DCA will implement a public security awareness program.

Q: Will there be a Federal Air Marshal on every flight into and out of Reagan Airport?

For purposes of security we will not discuss the numbers and deployment for the Air Marshal program. However, we recognize the importance and significance of their presence and we are committed to implementing a highly effective security program at Reagan National Airport.

Q: What about security at the destination and originating cities, will the security measures be the same?

The same heightened security measures will be the same at both the destination and originating cities.

Q: How long will Phase I last?

Phase I will be in place for about three weeks. This time will give the FAA, DOD, Secret Service, other law enforcement agencies, the airports, and airlines an opportunity to evaluate operations before moving forward.

Q: What do passengers need to know? Will they face new inconveniences?

Passengers have shown great patience during the aftermath following the September 11 tragedy and we ask for their continued patience as we put in place additional measures to make their airports, airlines and aircraft safer. Passengers will be limited to one carry-on bag and one personal item for DCA flights. Additional identification checks will be required before passengers board the aircraft. Passengers will want to get to the airport a little earlier than usual but passengers can also rest assured that they will be safer than ever before.

Q: Will airlines use the same flight approaches they have in the past? What about noise restrictions for local residents?

Different flight approaches will be used which may increase aircraft noise for some residents. Operations at DCA are temporarily being limited to between 7 a.m. and 10 p.m. to help reduce the impacts on residents.

Q: How have the circumstances changed to allow you to open Reagan airport?

The Administration wanted to take every step possible to ensure safety for passengers who use Reagan Airport. The Administration studied Reagan's special circumstances and location, worked government-wide to craft a new security plan and tough new security procedures, and now is ready to re-open the airport. Reagan Airport has many great economic benefits and is significant to the region. The Administration is excited to see people flying again in and out of Ronald Reagan Airport.

Q: Will general aviation flights be allowed at DCA?

General aviation flights will not be allowed in the initial two phases.

Q: Why not open the airport entirely?

The Administration brought America's air traffic system up in phases to ensure that every possible safety and security precaution was considered and implemented. The Administration thinks it is important to move forward in a deliberative, careful manner. We are taking the same approach here.

Opening Ronald Reagan National Airport

Ronald Reagan National Airport (DCA) will reopen on Thursday, October 4th for commercial operations. On Thursday shuttle service to New York and Boston will resume, and flights to the other six cities will begin as soon as the new security measures are in place – which could be as early as Thursday. Resumption of flights at DCA will take place in phases over an initial two-month period and extraordinary security measures will be in place for all approved flights. The President has identified the initial two phases that will lead to a resumption of normal commercial operations, with details of subsequent stages to be announced after review of initial flight operations.

Phase I. Initial Shuttle and Hub Connections (Duration: approximately 3 weeks)

- Extraordinary security measures -- the most exacting in the nation -- in place at DCA and all connecting terminals at connecting airports (see below).
- Commercial airlines only.
- Flights to eight hub airports served by six airlines, with slot restrictions determined by the Department of Transportation. The service will include:
  - ✓ New York LaGuardia – Delta Shuttle and US Airways Shuttle
  - ✓ Boston – Delta Shuttle, US Airways Shuttle and American
  - ✓ Atlanta – Delta and US Airways
  - ✓ Pittsburgh – US Airways
  - ✓ Chicago – American and United
  - ✓ Dallas – American and Delta
  - ✓ Minneapolis – Northwest
  - ✓ Newark – Continental
- Aircraft size is limited to 156 seats or less.
- Operations at DCA only between 7a.m. and 10p.m.

Phase I will allow approximately 190 flights-per-day (24 percent of the 792 scheduled commercial flights prior to 9/11).

Phase II. Expanded Hub Connection (Duration: 30-45 days following Phase I)

- All Phase I operations and operational requirements remain in effect, with the exception that the number of flights to each location may increase to previously scheduled levels.
- Direct flights to an additional 10 cities (18 total), with locations to be determined.

If preexisting schedules were resumed, Phase II would allow approximately 450 flights-per-day (57 percent of the 792 scheduled commercial flights prior to 9/11).

Enhanced Security Measures

Security will be strengthened in numerous ways by the FAA, the Department of Defense, the Secret Service, other law enforcement agencies, the airport authorities and airlines. Many of the security measures will be visible and many will not. Examples of new security measures include:

- Implementing the Federal Air Marshals program for DCA air traffic.
- Limiting passengers carry-on baggage to one bag plus one personal item (a purse or briefcase).
- Random hand-wanding of passengers at the gate.
- Identification check and boarding pass match as passengers board aircraft.
- Departures to DCA from approved cities allowed only from pre-designated, specially secured gates
- Expanded police and canine patrols of the secure areas.
- Enhanced scrutiny of vehicles and employees that enter the air operations area.
- Flight crews dedicated to DCA only, with mandatory pre-flight screening of crews.
- Requiring straight-line flight approaches and departures, temporarily discontinuing the "river visual approach" used to mitigate noise.
- DCA will implement a public security awareness program.

Questions and Answers

Q: When will Ronald Reagan Airport (DCA) open?

The airport will open this Thursday, October 4, for commercial operations. On Thursday shuttle service to New York and Boston will resume, and flights to the other six cities will begin as soon as the new security measures are in place – which could be as early as Thursday.

Q: How were the carriers and cities chosen for Phase I? How will they be chosen for Phase II?

Phase I operations were aimed at restoring at least some service to the carriers with the largest number of flights at DCA prior to September 11. Phase II will seek to restore some service to virtually all carriers operating in DCA prior to September 11.

Q: What are the increased security measures?

Security will be strengthened in a number of ways -- many of the security measures will be visible and many will not. New security measures will include:

- Implementing the Federal Air Marshals program for DCA air traffic.
- Limiting passengers carry-on baggage to one bag plus one personal item (a purse or briefcase).
- Random hand-wanding of passengers at the gate.
- Identification check and boarding pass match as passengers board aircraft.
- Departures to DCA from approved cities allowed only from pre-designated, specially secured gates
- Expanded police and canine patrols of the secure areas.
- Enhanced scrutiny of vehicles and employees that enter the air operations area.
- Flight crews dedicated to DCA only, with mandatory pre-flight screening of crews.
- Requiring straight-line flight approaches and departures, temporarily discontinuing the "river visual approach" used to mitigate noise.
- DCA will implement a public security awareness program.

Q: Will there be a Federal Air Marshal on every flight into and out of Reagan Airport?

For purposes of security we will not discuss the numbers and deployment for the Air Marshal program. However, we recognize the importance and significance of their presence and we are committed to implementing a highly effective security program at Reagan National Airport.

Q: What about security at the destination and originating cities, will the security measures be the same?

The same heightened security measures will be the same at both the destination and originating cities.

Q: How long will Phase I last?

Phase I will be in place for about three weeks. This time will give the FAA, DOD, Secret Service, other law enforcement agencies, the airports, and airlines an opportunity to evaluate operations before moving forward.

Q: What do passengers need to know? Will they face new inconveniences?

Passengers have shown great patience during the aftermath following the September 11 tragedy and we ask for their continued patience as we put in place additional measures to make their airports, airlines and aircraft safer. Passengers will be limited to one carry-on bag and one personal item for DCA flights. Additional identification checks will be required before passengers board the aircraft. Passengers will want to get to the airport a little earlier than usual but passengers can also rest assured that they will be safer than ever before.

Q: Will airlines use the same flight approaches they have in the past? What about noise restrictions for local residents?

Different flight approaches will be used which may increase aircraft noise for some residents. Operations at DCA are temporarily being limited to between 7 a.m. and 10 p.m. to help reduce the impacts on residents.

Q: How have the circumstances changed to allow you to open Reagan airport?

The Administration wanted to take every step possible to ensure safety for passengers who use Reagan Airport. The Administration studied Reagan's special circumstances and location, worked government-wide to craft a new security plan and tough new security procedures, and now is ready to re-open the airport. Reagan Airport has many great economic benefits and is significant to the region. The Administration is excited to see people flying again in and out of Ronald Reagan Airport.

Q: Will general aviation flights be allowed at DCA?

General aviation flights will not be allowed in the initial two phases.

Q: Why not open the airport entirely?

The Administration brought America's air traffic system up in phases to ensure that every possible safety and security precaution was considered and implemented. The Administration thinks it is important to move forward in a deliberative, careful manner. We are taking the same approach here.

Opening Ronald Reagan National Airport

Ronald Reagan National Airport (DCA) will reopen on Thursday, October 4th for commercial operations. On Thursday shuttle service to New York and Boston will resume, and flights to the other six cities will begin as soon as the new security measures are in place – which could be as early as Thursday. Resumption of flights at DCA will take place in phases over an initial two-month period and extraordinary security measures will be in place for all approved flights. The President has identified the initial two phases that will lead to a resumption of normal commercial operations, with details of subsequent stages to be announced after review of initial flight operations.

Phase I. Initial Shuttle and Hub Connections (Duration: approximately 3 weeks)

- Extraordinary security measures -- the most exacting in the nation -- in place at DCA and all connecting terminals at connecting airports (see below).
- Commercial airlines only.
- Flights to eight hub airports served by six airlines, with slot restrictions determined by the Department of Transportation. The service will include:
  - ✓ New York LaGuardia – Delta Shuttle and US Airways Shuttle
  - ✓ Boston – Delta Shuttle, US Airways Shuttle and American
  - ✓ Atlanta – Delta and US Airways
  - ✓ Pittsburgh – US Airways
  - ✓ Chicago – American and United
  - ✓ Dallas – American and Delta
  - ✓ Minneapolis – Northwest
  - ✓ Newark – Continental
- Aircraft size is limited to 156 seats or less.
- Operations at DCA only between 7a.m. and 10p.m.

Phase I will allow approximately 190 flights-per-day (24 percent of the 792 scheduled commercial flights prior to 9/11).

Phase II. Expanded Hub Connection (Duration: 30-45 days following Phase I)

- All Phase I operations and operational requirements remain in effect, with the exception that the number of flights to each location may increase to previously scheduled levels.
- Direct flights to an additional 10 cities (18 total), with locations to be determined.

If preexisting schedules were resumed, Phase II would allow approximately 450 flights-per-day (57 percent of the 792 scheduled commercial flights prior to 9/11).

Enhanced Security Measures

Security will be strengthened in numerous ways by the FAA, the Department of Defense, the Secret Service, other law enforcement agencies, the airport authorities and airlines. Many of the security measures will be visible and many will not. Examples of new security measures include:

- Implementing the Federal Air Marshals program for DCA air traffic.
- Limiting passengers carry-on baggage to one bag plus one personal item (a purse or briefcase).
- Random hand-wanding of passengers at the gate.
- Identification check and boarding pass match as passengers board aircraft.
- Departures to DCA from approved cities allowed only from pre-designated, specially secured gates
- Expanded police and canine patrols of the secure areas.
- Enhanced scrutiny of vehicles and employees that enter the air operations area.
- Flight crews dedicated to DCA only, with mandatory pre-flight screening of crews.
- Requiring straight-line flight approaches and departures, temporarily discontinuing the "river visual approach" used to mitigate noise.
- DCA will implement a public security awareness program.

Questions and Answers

Q: When will Ronald Reagan Airport (DCA) open?

The airport will open this Thursday, October 4, for commercial operations. On Thursday shuttle service to New York and Boston will resume, and flights to the other six cities will begin as soon as the new security measures are in place – which could be as early as Thursday.

Q: How were the carriers and cities chosen for Phase I? How will they be chosen for Phase II?

Phase I operations were aimed at restoring at least some service to the carriers with the largest number of flights at DCA prior to September 11. Phase II will seek to restore some service to virtually all carriers operating in DCA prior to September 11.

Q: What are the increased security measures?

Security will be strengthened in a number of ways -- many of the security measures will be visible and many will not. New security measures will include:

- Implementing the Federal Air Marshals program for DCA air traffic.
- Limiting passengers carry-on baggage to one bag plus one personal item (a purse or briefcase).
- Random hand-wanding of passengers at the gate.
- Identification check and boarding pass match as passengers board aircraft.
- Departures to DCA from approved cities allowed only from pre-designated, specially secured gates
- Expanded police and canine patrols of the secure areas.
- Enhanced scrutiny of vehicles and employees that enter the air operations area.
- Flight crews dedicated to DCA only, with mandatory pre-flight screening of crews.
- Requiring straight-line flight approaches and departures, temporarily discontinuing the "river visual approach" used to mitigate noise.
- DCA will implement a public security awareness program.

Q: Will there be a Federal Air Marshal on every flight into and out of Reagan Airport?

For purposes of security we will not discuss the numbers and deployment for the Air Marshal program. However, we recognize the importance and significance of their presence and we are committed to implementing a highly effective security program at Reagan National Airport.

Q: What about security at the destination and originating cities, will the security measures be the same?

The same heightened security measures will be the same at both the destination and originating cities.

Q: How long will Phase I last?

Phase I will be in place for about three weeks. This time will give the FAA, DOD, Secret Service, other law enforcement agencies, the airports, and airlines an opportunity to evaluate operations before moving forward.

Q: What do passengers need to know? Will they face new inconveniences?

Passengers have shown great patience during the aftermath following the September 11 tragedy and we ask for their continued patience as we put in place additional measures to make their airports, airlines and aircraft safer. Passengers will be limited to one carry-on bag and one personal item for DCA flights. Additional identification checks will be required before passengers board the aircraft. Passengers will want to get to the airport a little earlier than usual but passengers can also rest assured that they will be safer than ever before.

Q: Will airlines use the same flight approaches they have in the past? What about noise restrictions for local residents?

Different flight approaches will be used which may increase aircraft noise for some residents. Operations at DCA are temporarily being limited to between 7 a.m. and 10 p.m. to help reduce the impacts on residents.

Q: How have the circumstances changed to allow you to open Reagan airport?

The Administration wanted to take every step possible to ensure safety for passengers who use Reagan Airport. The Administration studied Reagan's special circumstances and location, worked government-wide to craft a new security plan and tough new security procedures, and now is ready to re-open the airport. Reagan Airport has many great economic benefits and is significant to the region. The Administration is excited to see people flying again in and out of Ronald Reagan Airport.

Q: Will general aviation flights be allowed at DCA?

General aviation flights will not be allowed in the initial two phases.

Q: Why not open the airport entirely?

The Administration brought America's air traffic system up in phases to ensure that every possible safety and security precaution was considered and implemented. The Administration thinks it is important to move forward in a deliberative, careful manner. We are taking the same approach here.

Opening Ronald Reagan National Airport

Ronald Reagan National Airport (DCA) will reopen on Thursday, October 4th for commercial operations. On Thursday shuttle service to New York and Boston will resume, and flights to the other six cities will begin as soon as the new security measures are in place – which could be as early as Thursday. Resumption of flights at DCA will take place in phases over an initial two-month period and extraordinary security measures will be in place for all approved flights. The President has identified the initial two phases that will lead to a resumption of normal commercial operations, with details of subsequent stages to be announced after review of initial flight operations.

Phase I. Initial Shuttle and Hub Connections (Duration: approximately 3 weeks)

- Extraordinary security measures -- the most exacting in the nation -- in place at DCA and all connecting terminals at connecting airports (see below).
- Commercial airlines only.
- Flights to eight hub airports served by six airlines, with slot restrictions determined by the Department of Transportation. The service will include:
  - ✓ New York LaGuardia – Delta Shuttle and US Airways Shuttle
  - ✓ Boston – Delta Shuttle, US Airways Shuttle and American
  - ✓ Atlanta – Delta and US Airways
  - ✓ Pittsburgh – US Airways
  - ✓ Chicago – American and United
  - ✓ Dallas – American and Delta
  - ✓ Minneapolis – Northwest
  - ✓ Newark – Continental
- Aircraft size is limited to 156 seats or less.
- Operations at DCA only between 7a.m. and 10p.m.

Phase I will allow approximately 190 flights-per-day (24 percent of the 792 scheduled commercial flights prior to 9/11).

Phase II. Expanded Hub Connection (Duration: 30-45 days following Phase I)

- All Phase I operations and operational requirements remain in effect, with the exception that the number of flights to each location may increase to previously scheduled levels.
- Direct flights to an additional 10 cities (18 total), with locations to be determined.

If preexisting schedules were resumed, Phase II would allow approximately 450 flights-per-day (57 percent of the 792 scheduled commercial flights prior to 9/11).

Enhanced Security Measures

Security will be strengthened in numerous ways by the FAA, the Department of Defense, the Secret Service, other law enforcement agencies, the airport authorities and airlines. Many of the security measures will be visible and many will not. Examples of new security measures include:

- Implementing the Federal Air Marshals program for DCA air traffic.
- Limiting passengers carry-on baggage to one bag plus one personal item (a purse or briefcase).
- Random hand-wanding of passengers at the gate.
- Identification check and boarding pass match as passengers board aircraft.
- Departures to DCA from approved cities allowed only from pre-designated, specially secured gates
- Expanded police and canine patrols of the secure areas.
- Enhanced scrutiny of vehicles and employees that enter the air operations area.
- Flight crews dedicated to DCA only, with mandatory pre-flight screening of crews.
- Requiring straight-line flight approaches and departures, temporarily discontinuing the "river visual approach" used to mitigate noise.
- DCA will implement a public security awareness program.

Questions and Answers

Q: When will Ronald Reagan Airport (DCA) open?

The airport will open this Thursday, October 4, for commercial operations. On Thursday shuttle service to New York and Boston will resume, and flights to the other six cities will begin as soon as the new security measures are in place – which could be as early as Thursday.

Q: How were the carriers and cities chosen for Phase I? How will they be chosen for Phase II?

Phase I operations were aimed at restoring at least some service to the carriers with the largest number of flights at DCA prior to September 11. Phase II will seek to restore some service to virtually all carriers operating in DCA prior to September 11.

Q: What are the increased security measures?

Security will be strengthened in a number of ways -- many of the security measures will be visible and many will not. New security measures will include:

- Implementing the Federal Air Marshals program for DCA air traffic.
- Limiting passengers carry-on baggage to one bag plus one personal item (a purse or briefcase).
- Random hand-wanding of passengers at the gate.
- Identification check and boarding pass match as passengers board aircraft.
- Departures to DCA from approved cities allowed only from pre-designated, specially secured gates
- Expanded police and canine patrols of the secure areas.
- Enhanced scrutiny of vehicles and employees that enter the air operations area.
- Flight crews dedicated to DCA only, with mandatory pre-flight screening of crews.
- Requiring straight-line flight approaches and departures, temporarily discontinuing the "river visual approach" used to mitigate noise.
- DCA will implement a public security awareness program.

Q: Will there be a Federal Air Marshal on every flight into and out of Reagan Airport?

For purposes of security we will not discuss the numbers and deployment for the Air Marshal program. However, we recognize the importance and significance of their presence and we are committed to implementing a highly effective security program at Reagan National Airport.

Q: What about security at the destination and originating cities, will the security measures be the same?

The same heightened security measures will be the same at both the destination and originating cities.

Q: How long will Phase I last?

Phase I will be in place for about three weeks. This time will give the FAA, DOD, Secret Service, other law enforcement agencies, the airports, and airlines an opportunity to evaluate operations before moving forward.

Q: What do passengers need to know? Will they face new inconveniences?

Passengers have shown great patience during the aftermath following the September 11 tragedy and we ask for their continued patience as we put in place additional measures to make their airports, airlines and aircraft safer. Passengers will be limited to one carry-on bag and one personal item for DCA flights. Additional identification checks will be required before passengers board the aircraft. Passengers will want to get to the airport a little earlier than usual but passengers can also rest assured that they will be safer than ever before.

Q: Will airlines use the same flight approaches they have in the past? What about noise restrictions for local residents?

Different flight approaches will be used which may increase aircraft noise for some residents. Operations at DCA are temporarily being limited to between 7 a.m. and 10 p.m. to help reduce the impacts on residents.

Q: How have the circumstances changed to allow you to open Reagan airport?

The Administration wanted to take every step possible to ensure safety for passengers who use Reagan Airport. The Administration studied Reagan's special circumstances and location, worked government-wide to craft a new security plan and tough new security procedures, and now is ready to re-open the airport. Reagan Airport has many great economic benefits and is significant to the region. The Administration is excited to see people flying again in and out of Ronald Reagan Airport.

Q: Will general aviation flights be allowed at DCA?

General aviation flights will not be allowed in the initial two phases.

Q: Why not open the airport entirely?

The Administration brought America's air traffic system up in phases to ensure that every possible safety and security precaution was considered and implemented. The Administration thinks it is important to move forward in a deliberative, careful manner. We are taking the same approach here.

Enhancing Aviation Safety & Security

Fact Sheet

Expanded Federal Air Marshal Program:

Since September 11, the U.S. government has been steadily increasing the number of Federal Air Marshals using law enforcement officers loaned from various federal agencies. The President will continue to expand the Air Marshal program and seek congressional approval to make this expansion permanent. The requirements and qualifications of Federal Air Marshals are among the most stringent of any U.S. federal law enforcement agency.

Federal Grant Program to Strengthen Aircraft Security:

Effective October 1, 2001, a fund of $500 million will be established to finance aircraft modifications to delay or deny access to the cockpit. Funding may be provided through grants or cost sharing arrangements and will be used for a number of projects, including to develop and implement means to:

- Restrict opening of the cockpit door during flight;
- Fortify cockpit doors to deny access from the cabin to the pilots in the cockpit;
- Alert the cockpit crew to activity in the cabin; and
- Ensure continuous operation of the aircraft transponder in the event the crew faces an emergency.

Federal Management of Airport Security Services:

The President will work with Congress to put the federal government in charge of airport security and screening services.

The new security will be performed by a combination of federal and non-federal workforce, with federal uniformed personnel managing all operations and maintaining a visible presence at all commercial airports.

The federal government will:

- Establish new standards for security operations.
- Supervise the passenger and baggage security at the 420 commercial passenger airports nationwide.
- Perform intensive background checks and train and test screeners and security personnel.
- Purchase and maintain all equipment.
- Oversee patrolling of secure areas and monitoring of the quality of the airport's access controls.
- Work with other law enforcement authorities at the federal, state and local levels as well as serve as a key facilitator of coordination regarding homeland security.

Immediate Airport Security Measures:

Fully implementing the extensive security proposal may take four to six months. During that time, the President will help ensure that every airport has a strong security presence by asking the Governors of the 50 States to call up the National Guard – at the federal government's expense – to augment existing security staff at every commercial airport nationwide.

Prior to deployment the National Guard personnel will receive training in airport security techniques from the FAA.

Questions & Answers on the President's Agenda to Improve Aviation Safety

National Guard Deployment

Q: What is the goal of deploying the National Guard to airports?

To immediately deploy a trained, armed and highly visible federal presence to enhance security at the nation's commercial airports.

Q: How many National Guard personnel will be deployed?

Sufficient National Guard personnel to staff checkpoints (many composed of multiple adjacent screening stations) at about 420 airports nationwide (including territories and commonwealths).

Q: When will the National Guard deployment begin?

The President will ask governors to begin the deployments immediately.

Q: What kind of training will be provided?

FAA will design and deliver comprehensive training in National Guard Armories and on-the-job training at airports addressing:

- Legal and operational considerations of the checkpoint operation
- Courteous and efficient screening
- Safe handling of deadly or dangerous items
- Incident management
- Conflict resolution
- Screening techniques and equipment

Q: Who will pay for the costs associated with the mobilization?

The federal government will pay the entire costs of the mobilization

Q: What will be the duties, responsibilities, and authorities of the National Guard?

Provide a highly visible, armed deterrence at security checkpoints

- Monitor and reinforce the pre-existing checkpoint structure and operations
- Monitor alertness and performance, and in conjunction with the ground security coordinator, ensure corrective actions are taken as necessary
- Actively provide assistance to screeners and supervisors as necessary
- Assist in responding to and resolving routine contentious situations, when requested
- Assist local law enforcement conducting regular duties at the checkpoint, upon request.

- Evaluate checkpoint operations and provide observations and recommendations to the checkpoint supervisors and FAA.

Q: Why didn't the President federalize the National Guard?

Because mobilization through the governors gives the National Guard additional civilian law enforcement powers.

Expansion of the Federal Air Marshal Program

Q: How many Federal Air Marshals were there before Sept. 11 and how many will there be under the new expansion?

The Federal Air Marshal force is now being significantly expanded. For reasons of national security, we are not able to divulge certain information – including their numbers, flights, training, funding levels, and weapons.

Q: Why didn't we have Federal Air Marshals on the hijacked flights?

Federal Air Marshals have always been deployed to the areas of greatest risk. Prior to Sept. 11 the greatest risk to U.S. carriers was believed to be outside of the U.S.

Q: What are the training and qualifications requirements for Air Marshals?

The requirements and qualifications of Federal Air Marshals are among the most stringent of any U.S. federal law enforcement agencies. In fact, they have the highest shooting qualification standards of all such agencies. These high and demanding standards will be maintained as we expand the program.

We are currently using a significant number of law enforcement officers from other agencies to serve as temporary air marshals as we expand the force. These officers have all received intensive training on the unique aspects of preventing hijackings.

Q: When will the new program be fully staffed?

While we are not able to divulge staffing numbers due to national security concerns, the dramatic expansion of the air marshal program will lead to improved aviation security for passengers and flight crews.

Q: What should someone do if he or she wants to become a Federal Air Marshal?

The response from the American public to our call for more Federal Air Marshals has been overwhelming and heart-warming. Volunteers can download an application from the FAA web-site. The address is: jobs.faa.gov. Our latest tally showed 5.2 million hits and more than 150,000 applications downloaded.

Aviation Security & Aircraft Modernization Grants

Q: What specific new activities will the government be undertaking?

The President will work with Congress to put the federal government in charge of airport security and screening services. The new security will be performed by a combination of federal and non-federal workforce, with federal uniformed personnel managing all operations and maintaining a visible presence at all commercial airports.

The federal government will:

- Establish new standards for security operations.
- Supervise the passenger and baggage security at the 420 commercial passenger airports nationwide.
- Perform intensive background checks and train and test screeners and security personnel.
- Purchase and maintain all equipment.
- Oversee patrolling of secure areas and monitoring of the quality of the airport's access controls.
- Work with other law enforcement authorities at the federal, state and local levels as well as serve as a key facilitator of coordination regarding homeland security.

Q: What are the grants to be used for?

Effective October 1, 2001, a fund of $500 million will be established to finance aircraft modifications to delay or deny access to the cockpit. Funding may be provided through grants, cost sharing or other arrangements and will be used for a number of projects, including to develop and implement means to:

- Restrict opening of the cockpit door during flight;
- Fortify cockpit doors to deny access from the cabin to the pilots in the cockpit;
- Alert the cockpit crew to activity in the cabin; and
- Ensure continuous operation of the aircraft transponder in the event the crew faces an emergency.

Q: Who is eligible for the grants?

The objective of this grant program is to quickly make modifications to airplanes that prohibit unwanted entry to the cockpit.

Since the airlines are responsible for making the necessary changes to their airplanes, applications will only be accepted from the airlines. Initially, only U.S. airlines will be eligible for the grants. Individuals and groups outside the airline community with designs that they believe prohibit entry to the cockpit should work directly with the airlines to make their designs known.

Q: Why aren't foreign carriers that fly into and out of the U.S. eligible?

The objective is to identify immediate changes that can be made to prohibit unwanted entry into the cockpit. Under international law, the country that operates the airplane is primarily responsible for its design and operation. So, changes to international airplanes need to be coordinated with those authorities. The US government will work closely and share ideas and information on safety and cockpit protections with all foreign authorities.

Q: How will the grant funds be awarded?

DOT Secretary Mineta will work with the Federal Aviation Administration to establish a Board that will apply a set of discrete criteria that will ensure the fair and equitable distribution of the funds. The award will be based upon the applicant's ability to meet defined requirements that will be specified in the award criteria. Applicants must be able to demonstrate their ability to design, develop, and/or install the safety enhancement within an established timeframe. Applicants must be able to demonstrate that the product can be applied across the aviation industry. Funds will be awarded through established processes to quickly disburse Federal funds.

Q: What kind of projects can be funded in the short term?

There have already been ideas presented by some airlines to provide protection against intrusion: Examples of these ideas include:

- Deadbolts, bars, nets or similar devices across the inside of the flight deck doors
- Video cameras in the cabin to allow flight crew to monitor activity in the cabin without leaving the flight deck
- Additional technology used to alert Air Traffic Control of a hijacking situation

Q: Why don't you just order the airlines to make the necessary changes?

There are too many differences among aircraft designs to come up with a single improvement that will deny access to every cabin.

We want safety improved as quickly as possible, and airlines are in the best position to implement the best solutions in the shortest amount of time.

Q: Will the best ideas be shared among airlines?

The government will not make cockpit protection design details publicly available because of security reasons. However, the government will require that any technology or other solution that is funded be available for any airline to use. It would be inefficient to expect every airline to come up with their own solutions for every aircraft. We should share information so more passengers can be more safe as soon as possible.

Q: What other safety plans are being considered?

A task force convened by Secretary Mineta is already working on longer-term ideas that will enhance security and safety. Their report will be presented to the Secretary on Monday October 1.

MEMORANDUM FOR BERYL HOWELL

CC: BRUCE COHEN
HEATHER WINGATE
JENNIFER NEWSTEAD

FROM: COURTNEY SIMMONS ELWOOD

SUBJECT: OUTSTANDING ISSUES

This memo should address many of the issues you raised this evening. (We have provided some of these answers through individual e-mails.) More answers will be forthcoming in the morning.

101: We have reviewed the proposal you provided at the meeting. We are concerned that the changes you request, when inserted into the existing statutory language, render the provision nonsensical. Specifically, as amended the provision would read:

> 3121(c) Limitation.--A government agency authorized to install and use a pen register or trap and trace device under this chapter or under State law shall use technology reasonably available to it that restricts the recording or decoding of electronic or other impulses to the dialing, routing, addressing, and signaling information that does not include the contents the processing and transmitting of wire and electronic communications.

Obviously this is not what you intended. And I think we agree on the principle that you were trying to articulate. Perhaps the following language would accomplish the goal:

> (c) Limitation.--A government agency authorized to install and use a pen register or trap and trace device under this chapter or under State law shall use technology reasonably available to it that restricts the recording or decoding of electronic or other impulses to the dialing, routing, addressing, and signaling information utilized in the processing and transmitting of wire and electronic communications so as not to include the contents of any wire or electronic communications.

With respect to the "Assistance to Law Enforcement Agencies" provision that you received from the telecommunications industry, we have the following comments. We understand the first sentence to confirm that the Act would not require a telecommunications provider to modify its equipment to provide the assistance, facilities, and services required by the Act. If that is also your understanding, then it should not cause a problem. Tomorrow, we may request for a clarification in the statutory language or in the legislative history to ensure that this intent is clear.

The second sentence appears to be a blanket statement that providers shall be reasonably compensated for complying with obligations to assist law enforcement. We have no objection in principle to this idea. We wonder, however, why the telecom industry thinks this provision is necessary. The wiretap statute, the pen/trap statute, and the Electronic Communications Privacy Act already contain just this kind of provision for reasonable compensation. I would appreciate learning if the telecommunications providers are concerned that the compensation provisions in one of these statutes does not cover something added by the Act.

103: The following provision has not been fully vetted at the Department of Justice and at the FBI, but I believe that it captures the concept we were discussing at today's meeting.

DISCLOSURE - Section 2517 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by inserting at the end the following:

"(6) Any investigative or law enforcement officer, or attorney for the government, who by any means authorized by this chapter, has obtained knowledge of the contents of any wire, oral, or electronic communication, or evidence derived therefrom, may disclose such contents to any other Federal law enforcement, intelligence, protective, immigration, national defense, or other national security official to the extent that such contents include foreign intelligence or counterintelligence (as defined in 50 U.S.C. 401a), foreign intelligence information (as defined in 50 U.S.C. 1801), or national security information, to assist the official who is to receive that information in the performance of that his official duties. Any Federal official who receives information pursuant to this provision may use that information as necessary in the conduct of that person's official duties subject to any limitations applicable to that official's retention and dissemination of information of that type.

109: After our meeting, you asked whether our proposed Cable Act provision (section 109 of the Administration's bill) provided for government access to cable viewing activity. Our proposal provides:

Section 631 of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 551) is amended--
(1) in subsection (c)(2)--
(A) in subparagraph (B) by striking "or";
(B) in subparagraph (C) by striking the period at the end and inserting "; or"; and
(C) by adding the following subparagraph after subparagraph (C):
"(D) authorized under chapters 119, 121, or 206 of title 18, United States Code. Such disclosure shall not include records revealing customer cable television viewing activity."; and
(2) in subsection (h) by striking "A governmental entity" and inserting "Except as provided in subsection (c)(2)(D), a governmental entity".

Under this proposal, the procedure for getting cable TV viewing records would remain unchanged: such records could still be obtained under 551(h). This amendment (109) would provide no new procedure for obtaining such records.

Since this confirms your reading of this provision, I shall assume that, consistent with the your earlier e-mail, you accept this formulation for section 109 of the bill. Please let me know if my assumption is incorrect.

152: Here is a new proposal for section 152, along the lines we discussed today. This revision would replace the current 206 of the Leahy bill.

REV_00200038

Sec. [ ] Multi-Point Authority

Section 105(c)(2)(B) of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act of 1978 (50 U.S.C. 1805(c)(2)(b)) is amended by inserting, ", or in circumstances where the court finds, based on the application or on supplemental information provided to the Court, that the actions of the target of the application may have the effect of thwarting the identification of a specified person, such other persons" after "specified person."

153: We would like you to consider the following language for section 153. It changes the "purpose" provision to a "significant purpose" and adds coordination language similar to what you proposed. David Kris will be available any time tomorrow to discuss why the specific language that you proposed may be problematic.

SEC. 153. FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE INFORMATION.

(a) The Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act of 1978 is amended by replacing "the purpose" with "a significant purpose" –

(1) in section 104(a)(7)(B) (50 U.S.C. 1804(a)(7)(B)); and
(2) in section 303(a)(7)(B) (50 U.S.C. 1823(a)(7)(B)).

(b) The Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act of 1978 is amended by adding a new section, 50 U.S.C. 1812, as follows:

(a) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, subject to guidelines approved by the Attorney General, information relevant to preserving or enhancing the option of a possible criminal prosecution that is obtained in the course of a foreign intelligence or counterintelligence investigation that has been authorized by the Attorney General, including information obtained from activity authorized by this title, may be disseminated by officials conducting, supervising, or assisting such an investigation to federal or state law-enforcement officials.

(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, subject to guidelines approved by the Attorney General, a full range of advice designed to preserve or enhance the option of a possible criminal prosecution, other than advice on the initiation, operation, continuation, or expansion of activity authorized by this title, may be provided by federal or state law-enforcement officials to officials conducting, supervising, or assisting a foreign intelligence or counterintelligence investigation that has been authorized by the Attorney General, including investigations in which activity authorized by this title is being conducted.

154: The following provision has not been fully vetted at the Department of Justice and at the FBI, but I believe that it captures the concept we were discussing at today's meeting.

> Notwithstanding any other provision of law, it shall be lawful for foreign intelligence or counterintelligence (as defined in 50 U.S.C. 401a), foreign intelligence information (as defined in 50 U.S.C. 1801), or national security information obtained as part of a criminal investigation (including, without limitation, information subject to Rule 6(e) of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure and information obtained pursuant to chapter 119 of title 18, United States Code) to be disclosed to any Federal law enforcement, intelligence, protective, immigration, national defense, or other national security official in order to assist the official receiving that information in the performance of his official duties.

156: The Administration accepts Leahy's Section 216 as a substitute for our administrative subpoena provision.

159: You asked us to consider deleting paragraph (4) of section 159 on "classified information." I have spoken by telephone with Brad Berenson of the White House Counsel's Office, and he tells me that deleting paragraph (4) is not a viable option. He can provide you with a detailed explanation. But here it is in a nutshell: There will be certain circumstances under which determinations under section 159 are reviewable. The President's recent Executive Order contemplates that the Secretary of Treasury will designate persons, organizations, and/or countries to be added to the list, and this determination will reviewable under the APA. While we do not expect that such judicial review will be commonplace, it will occur. Therefore we need the provision on classified information to specify the treatment of such classified information in those administrative proceedings.

You have Brad's phone number (456-2318), and you should feel free to discuss this with him at greater length.

Disclosure of FISA Applications to Defense Counsel under CIPA.

This evening you provided us with a draft provision that would require mandatory disclosure of FISA applications under CIPA. The Administration would strongly oppose inclusion of such a provision in this bill. Current law provides that a district court "may" disclose FISA applications and other materials to a criminal defendant (or other litigant) against whom FISA information is to be used in court. The draft proposal would require the district court to order such disclosure under CIPA. If enacted, such a provision would represent a major change from current law. No district court has ever found it necessary to disclose a FISA application to a criminal defendant in order to ensure that the defendant was afforded his or her constitutional right to a fair trial. A criminal defendant's procedural due process rights do not in any way turn on the defendant's obtaining access to the application that gives rise to FISA Court authorized collection against the defendant. Given that fact, it is especially important to note that mandatory disclosure of FISA applications would significantly augment the risk of publicly exposing extraordinarily sensitive - and perishable - intelligence sources and methods. It would be imprudent to invite that heightened intelligence risk for no procedural due process gain. For those reasons, we believe statutorily compelling disclosure of FISA applications, even under CIPA, would be unnecessary and unsound.

305: Two issues. First, you asked if the Administration would be willing to drop the "Additional Offense" provision found in 305(a)(1)(C). This language, as you know, came directly from Senator Biden's bill, and we are unwilling to drop it without Senator Biden's approval. Part of your frustration with this provision, I understand, is its awkward phrasing. This language, however, tracks the Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production, and Stockpiling of Bacteriological (Biological) and Toxin Weapons and or their Destruction. Second, to respond to concerns raised by Senator Kyl this evening, we ask that you agree to delete 305(a)(1)(A)(iv) - referring to the definitions of "biological agent" and "toxin."

307: We ask that you consider adding the following two crimes to the list of predicates for the harboring provision:

REV_00200041

2280 (involving maritime violence--basically an Achille Lauro situation, and to be symmetrical with air piracy).

1366(a) (damage of over $100,000 to an energy facility, or which would cause a significant interruption or impairment of function of an energy facility).

352: After our meeting, you sent us proposal on the notice ("sneak and peak") provision. We unfortunately cannot accept your proposal in its entirety. We have prepared a redline of your proposal, which shows the additional language we think is need and the language that should be deleted.

Sec. ___ Authority for delaying notice of the execution of a warrant.

Section 3103a of title 18, United States Code, is amended by -

(1) inserting "(a) IN GENERAL.-" before "In addition"; and

(2) inserting at the end the following:

"(b) With respect to the issuance of any warrant or court order under this section, or any other rule of law, to search for and seize any property or material that constitutes evidence of a criminal offense in violation of the laws of the United States ~~[an act of domestic or international terrorism (as defined in section 2331)]~~, any notice required, or that may be required, to be given may be delayed if --

"(1) the court finds ~~probable~~ reasonable cause to believe that providing immediate notification of the execution of the warrant may have an adverse result as defined in section 2705;

"(2) ~~the warrant prohibits the seizure of any tangible property, any wire or electronic communication, or any stored wire or electronic communication (as defined in section 2510) except where necessary to prevent~~ a [an immediate] ~~threat to life or public safety; and~~

~~"(3)~~ the warrant provides for the giving of such notice within a reasonable period of its execution, which period may thereafter be extended by the court for good cause shown."

In our meeting, you said that each of the three conditions found in paragraphs (1) through (3) sprang directly from the case law. We have looked at that case law and have not been able to find the condition outlined in paragraph (2). Similarly, the cases do not speak of "probable cause"; they speak of "reasonable cause." We therefore modified that language accordingly.

354: The following provision has not been fully vetted at the Department of Justice and at the FBI, but I believe that it captures the concept we were discussing at today's meeting.

Rule 6(e)(3)(C) of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure is amended - in subparagraph (iii), by striking "or" at the end; in subparagraph (iv), by striking the period at the end and inserting "; or"; and by inserting at the end the following:
"(v) when the matters involve foreign intelligence or counterintelligence (as defined in 50 U.S.C. 401a), foreign intelligence information (as defined in 50 U.S.C. 1801), or national security information, to any other Federal law enforcement, intelligence, protective, immigration, national defense, or other national security official in order to assist the official receiving that information in the performance of his official duties.

356: As we've discussed before, I'd appreciate your including in section 356 (Leahy 805) at the bottom of the provision:

> "This paragraph does not apply with respect to an offense committed by a person described in section 3261(a) of this title."

Additional comments

106: We have made a technical change in our section 106 - changing "preexisting" to "existing" to make it clear that former customers may still be considered computer trespassers.

We have separately provided to you by fax minor revisions to Sections 504, 806, 807, 808, 810, 811, 812, 813, and 815 of the Leahy bill.

It also appears that you have dropped section 108 of our bill. Was this inadvertent?

REV_00200043

Finally, there are a couple of provisions in your bill that we have not discussed. First, section 209, on encouraging airline employees to report suspicious activities. The Administration cannot support this provision because of the potentially dangerous unintended consequences created by the immunity provision. Second, is there a meaningful difference between sections 209 and 217 of your bill? They appear at first glance to do the same thing.

Tomorrow we will study the remaining provisions of the Leahy bill and will let you know where, in our view, your provisions may deviate (if at all) from our understanding of the negotiations.

We look forward to discussing these and other issues with you tomorrow.

RESPONDING TO THE SEPTEMBER 11 TERRORIST ATTACKS

The President and members of Congress from both parties are implementing a $40 billion emergency response package to help deal with the tragic events of September 11. This funding will ensure that the U.S. has the resources to respond to and recover from the attacks and to protect national security.

Billions of dollars have already been released to assist in New York and the other impacted areas – and more funding is on the way. Examples of the important activities being funded in New York and the other areas include:

- ☑ Federal Emergency Management Agency, $2 billion: These funds will support overall emergency assistance in New York and other affected jurisdictions. This includes costs associated with debris removal and emergency protective measures, as well as individual and family assistance, search and rescue, and other disaster assistance efforts.

- ☑ Department of Health and Human Services, $126.2 million: These funds will provide assistance for the health-related needs of the disaster-affected areas of the New York metropolitan area, Virginia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia.

- ☑ Small Business Administration, $100 million: These funds will support $400 million in low-interest disaster loans for renters, homeowners, and businesses in designated disaster areas.

- ☑ Department of the Treasury, $48.4 million: These funds will support the immediate response and recovery needs of the approximately 1,000 Treasury employees who were located in or near the World Trade Center complex, most of whose offices were destroyed.

- ☑ Department of Labor, $29 million: These amounts will provide funding for: the Department of Labor's Dislocated Workers program to provide temporary jobs to assist in clean-up and restoration efforts in New York; assistance to cover immediate information technology and other costs of disaster recovery for unemployment insurance claims processing that need to be relocated; and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's monitoring of health and safety at the disaster sites.

- ☑ Department of the Interior, $3.1 million: These amounts will provide funding for National Park Service and U.S. Park Police emergency response costs in New York City and Washington, DC, as well as increased security patrols in both cities.

- ☑ Commodity Futures Trading Commission, $200,000: The Commodity Futures Trading Commission's New York office, which was located in the World Trade Center, will use these funds to purchase computers and office equipment for its temporary space.

OTHER EXAMPLES OF FEDERAL RESPONSE ACTIVITIES

- Federal Emergency Management Agency: The President has authorized FEMA to provide an unprecedented level of assistance. For example, the President has authorized FEMA to pay for 100 percent of public assistance activities in New York and at the Pentagon (typically, states pay 25 percent of these costs). This marks the first time FEMA will cover the entire share of public assistance expenses. Examples of public assistance activities include debris removal and repair and restoration of public facilities. In addition:

FOR MORE INFORMATION ABOUT THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

- FEMA has assigned 11 Federal agencies to respond to the attack. Among the Federal agencies tasked to respond were the Department of Defense, Army Corps of Engineers, USDA Forest Service, Public Health Service, and EPA.
- FEMA has called up 10 FEMA Urban Search and Rescue task forces from around the Nation to assist in the efforts in New York and Virginia. Urban Search and Rescue task forces are teams of local emergency responders that have specialized FEMA training and equipment for rescuing people in the wake of disasters such as earthquakes and terrorist events.
- Examples of additional FEMA action:
  - ✓ The agency has also been working with local governments on the debris removal efforts.
  - ✓ There are currently 3,571 Federal personnel, including 1,596 from FEMA, working in response to these incidents.
  - ✓ Through September 27, FEMA had obligated $240.5 million in New York and Virginia.
  - ✓ FEMA has established Disaster Field Offices in New York City and Virginia where disaster victims may seeks assistance. FEMA also is operating a toll-free hotline for information and registering disaster victims.
  - ✓ Through September 27, 115,756 tons of debris had been removed from the WTC site. The estimate for total debris at the WTC is 1.2 million tons.
  - ✓ FEMA is helping city, state, and volunteer organizations organize a long-term strategy for using the millions of dollars in donated funds.
  - ✓ Working with the American Red Cross and other volunteer and Federal agencies, FEMA has been providing humanitarian and financial assistance to disaster victims.

➢ Department of Education:

- Provided $5 million for Rehabilitation Services Administration to help individuals who suffered disabling physical or mental trauma as a result of the WTC attacks, as well as funds to help previously disabled Americans who lost jobs, rehabilitation or other support structures as a result of the attack.
- Provided $4 million to New York City schools and $1.7 million to New York state schools for Project SERV grants that support counseling and mental health services for affected children.
- Department of Education also established a loan forgiveness program to help those who live or work in NY City by providing temporary relief from student loan payments.

➢ Department of Labor. Labor is working to ensure the safety of the World Trade Center site for rescue personnel and is providing financial assistance to dislocated workers.

- Labor has also released $25 million of dislocated worker assistance to the State of New York to create temporary jobs to help with cleanup efforts.
- About 180 Occupational Safety & Health Administration (OSHA) staff have been deployed to provide around-the-clock safety and health assistance.

➢ Department of Justice

- The President signed into law legislation that will speed payment of $152,000 in compensation to the family of each fallen police officer, firefighter and rescuer through the Public Safety Officers' Benefits program.
- The President also signed into law a victims compensation benefit program for expeditious payment of compensation to victims or their relatives for losses suffered as a result of the terrorist attacks. The program establishes a special claim process in the Department of Justice.

➢ Health and Human Services (HHS). More than 570 (HHS) personnel are deployed in the New York City area to augment medical personnel assisting victims and recovery workers.

FOR MORE INFORMATION ABOUT THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

- HHS mental health services personnel and U.S. Public Health Service reservists are providing services to Federal responders and the public.
- The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) has deployed personnel to assist the New York City Health Department in patient care and follow-up needs.
- HHS has also made available about 100 doctors, nurses and other health care professionals to staff two treatment stations to provide round-the-clock medical care to rescue and recovery workers toiling in the aftermath of the attack in New York City.

➢ Small Business Administration (SBA). Along with FEMA and other Federal agencies, SBA's Disaster Loan Program has set up Disaster Field Offices in New York and Virginia where disaster victims may come for assistance.

- SBA has sent out 5,677 applications for low-interest disaster loans. SBA has directly assisted 4,598 individuals and businesses with loan applications and other inquiries.
- SBA has already approved disaster loans totaling $6,052,900.
- SBA is also conducting information workshops at different locations around New York to reach as many disaster victims as possible.

➢ Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). EPA is monitoring the disaster sites to ensure that rescue workers and the public are not facing dangerous environmental risks.

- Over 200 EPA personnel have participated in the response to the terrorist attacks in New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia.
- EPA has been responsible for cleaning and washing down of all workers, equipment, and resources employed during the rescue stage.
- The Agency is sampling air, water, and asbestos as well as conducting radiological and dust monitoring.
- EPA is also vacuuming and cleaning sidewalks, streets, and buildings in the World Trade Center area.

➢ Army Corps of Engineers (Corps). Corps structural engineering teams have been surveying buildings and structures in New York City so the city can assure the safety of search, rescue and debris-removal operations in and around the affected areas. The Corps is also developing a debris operations plan for the New York City. In addition, the Corps is considering potential improvements to a harbor facility for removing debris by barge.

➢ Internal Revenue Service: The IRS and Treasury have extended deadlines for all taxpayers affected by the tragedy.

- IRS released new information to help the public use charitable organizations and has sped up the processing of requests for tax-exempt status from new charities formed to assist victims of the September 11 attacks.
- IRS created a special e-mail address for businesses to send their questions to the IRS and get answers about extensions and other relief stemming from the disasters.
- IRS issued a release reminding taxpayers who suffered property losses because of the September 11 terrorist attacks that they may get a quick tax refund by claiming these losses on an amended return for 2000.

RESPONDING TO THE SEPTEMBER 11 TERRORIST ATTACKS

The President and members of Congress from both parties are implementing a $40 billion emergency response package to help deal with the tragic events of September 11. This funding will ensure that the U.S. has the resources to respond to and recover from the attacks and to protect national security.

Billions of dollars have already been released to assist in New York and the other impacted areas – and more funding is on the way. Examples of the important activities being funded in New York and the other areas include:

- ☑ Federal Emergency Management Agency, $2 billion: These funds will support overall emergency assistance in New York and other affected jurisdictions. This includes costs associated with debris removal and emergency protective measures, as well as individual and family assistance, search and rescue, and other disaster assistance efforts.

- ☑ Department of Health and Human Services, $126.2 million: These funds will provide assistance for the health-related needs of the disaster-affected areas of the New York metropolitan area, Virginia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia.

- ☑ Small Business Administration, $100 million: These funds will support $400 million in low-interest disaster loans for renters, homeowners, and businesses in designated disaster areas.

- ☑ Department of the Treasury, $48.4 million: These funds will support the immediate response and recovery needs of the approximately 1,000 Treasury employees who were located in or near the World Trade Center complex, most of whose offices were destroyed.

- ☑ Department of Labor, $29 million: These amounts will provide funding for: the Department of Labor's Dislocated Workers program to provide temporary jobs to assist in clean-up and restoration efforts in New York; assistance to cover immediate information technology and other costs of disaster recovery for unemployment insurance claims processing that need to be relocated; and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's monitoring of health and safety at the disaster sites.

- ☑ Department of the Interior, $3.1 million: These amounts will provide funding for National Park Service and U.S. Park Police emergency response costs in New York City and Washington, DC, as well as increased security patrols in both cities.

- ☑ Commodity Futures Trading Commission, $200,000: The Commodity Futures Trading Commission's New York office, which was located in the World Trade Center, will use these funds to purchase computers and office equipment for its temporary space.

OTHER EXAMPLES OF FEDERAL RESPONSE ACTIVITIES

- Federal Emergency Management Agency: The President has authorized FEMA to provide an unprecedented level of assistance. For example, the President has authorized FEMA to pay for 100 percent of public assistance activities in New York and at the Pentagon (typically, states pay 25 percent of these costs). This marks the first time FEMA will cover the entire share of public assistance expenses. Examples of public assistance activities include debris removal and repair and restoration of public facilities. In addition:

FOR MORE INFORMATION ABOUT THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

- FEMA has assigned 11 Federal agencies to respond to the attack. Among the Federal agencies tasked to respond were the Department of Defense, Army Corps of Engineers, USDA Forest Service, Public Health Service, and EPA.
- FEMA has called up 10 FEMA Urban Search and Rescue task forces from around the Nation to assist in the efforts in New York and Virginia. Urban Search and Rescue task forces are teams of local emergency responders that have specialized FEMA training and equipment for rescuing people in the wake of disasters such as earthquakes and terrorist events.
- Examples of additional FEMA action:
  - ✓ The agency has also been working with local governments on the debris removal efforts.
  - ✓ There are currently 3,571 Federal personnel, including 1,596 from FEMA, working in response to these incidents.
  - ✓ Through September 27, FEMA had obligated $240.5 million in New York and Virginia.
  - ✓ FEMA has established Disaster Field Offices in New York City and Virginia where disaster victims may seeks assistance. FEMA also is operating a toll-free hotline for information and registering disaster victims.
  - ✓ Through September 27, 115,756 tons of debris had been removed from the WTC site. The estimate for total debris at the WTC is 1.2 million tons.
  - ✓ FEMA is helping city, state, and volunteer organizations organize a long-term strategy for using the millions of dollars in donated funds.
  - ✓ Working with the American Red Cross and other volunteer and Federal agencies, FEMA has been providing humanitarian and financial assistance to disaster victims.

➢ Department of Education:

- Provided $5 million for Rehabilitation Services Administration to help individuals who suffered disabling physical or mental trauma as a result of the WTC attacks, as well as funds to help previously disabled Americans who lost jobs, rehabilitation or other support structures as a result of the attack.
- Provided $4 million to New York City schools and $1.7 million to New York state schools for Project SERV grants that support counseling and mental health services for affected children.
- Department of Education also established a loan forgiveness program to help those who live or work in NY City by providing temporary relief from student loan payments.

➢ Department of Labor. Labor is working to ensure the safety of the World Trade Center site for rescue personnel and is providing financial assistance to dislocated workers.

- Labor has also released $25 million of dislocated worker assistance to the State of New York to create temporary jobs to help with cleanup efforts.
- About 180 Occupational Safety & Health Administration (OSHA) staff have been deployed to provide around-the-clock safety and health assistance.

➢ Department of Justice

- The President signed into law legislation that will speed payment of $152,000 in compensation to the family of each fallen police officer, firefighter and rescuer through the Public Safety Officers' Benefits program.
- The President also signed into law a victims compensation benefit program for expeditious payment of compensation to victims or their relatives for losses suffered as a result of the terrorist attacks. The program establishes a special claim process in the Department of Justice.

➢ Health and Human Services (HHS). More than 570 (HHS) personnel are deployed in the New York City area to augment medical personnel assisting victims and recovery workers.

FOR MORE INFORMATION ABOUT THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

- HHS mental health services personnel and U.S. Public Health Service reservists are providing services to Federal responders and the public.
- The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) has deployed personnel to assist the New York City Health Department in patient care and follow-up needs.
- HHS has also made available about 100 doctors, nurses and other health care professionals to staff two treatment stations to provide round-the-clock medical care to rescue and recovery workers toiling in the aftermath of the attack in New York City.

➢ Small Business Administration (SBA). Along with FEMA and other Federal agencies, SBA's Disaster Loan Program has set up Disaster Field Offices in New York and Virginia where disaster victims may come for assistance.

- SBA has sent out 5,677 applications for low-interest disaster loans. SBA has directly assisted 4,598 individuals and businesses with loan applications and other inquiries.
- SBA has already approved disaster loans totaling $6,052,900.
- SBA is also conducting information workshops at different locations around New York to reach as many disaster victims as possible.

➢ Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). EPA is monitoring the disaster sites to ensure that rescue workers and the public are not facing dangerous environmental risks.

- Over 200 EPA personnel have participated in the response to the terrorist attacks in New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia.
- EPA has been responsible for cleaning and washing down of all workers, equipment, and resources employed during the rescue stage.
- The Agency is sampling air, water, and asbestos as well as conducting radiological and dust monitoring.
- EPA is also vacuuming and cleaning sidewalks, streets, and buildings in the World Trade Center area.

➢ Army Corps of Engineers (Corps). Corps structural engineering teams have been surveying buildings and structures in New York City so the city can assure the safety of search, rescue and debris-removal operations in and around the affected areas. The Corps is also developing a debris operations plan for the New York City. In addition, the Corps is considering potential improvements to a harbor facility for removing debris by barge.

➢ Internal Revenue Service: The IRS and Treasury have extended deadlines for all taxpayers affected by the tragedy.

- IRS released new information to help the public use charitable organizations and has sped up the processing of requests for tax-exempt status from new charities formed to assist victims of the September 11 attacks.
- IRS created a special e-mail address for businesses to send their questions to the IRS and get answers about extensions and other relief stemming from the disasters.
- IRS issued a release reminding taxpayers who suffered property losses because of the September 11 terrorist attacks that they may get a quick tax refund by claiming these losses on an amended return for 2000.
